Students, children celebrate Tons-Of-Fun VII

There was plenty of jumping, running, spinning, laughing and dancing — and that was just from the children.

Tons-of-Fun celebrated its seventh year with games, singing and fellowship for SIUE students, faculty, parents and children.

Preliminary figures Monday morning showed that over 800 people passed through the doors of the Vadalabene Center Friday night.

Betty R. Lawton, Wellness Program Coordinator said, "The purpose of Tons-of-Fun is to provide some kind of social, alternative activity. It's for those who don't want to go to the bar."

Lawton has been involved with Tons-of-Fun for four years and organized the event this year.

"We wanted to get student organizations involved with putting on events this year," Lawton said.

The events included children's activities from face-painting to tic-tac-toe.

Melinda Davidson, 21, a senior majoring in nursing, painted over 30 little faces Friday night.

"The joy tonight came from seeing their (the children's) happy, smiling faces when they looked at the finished painting," Davidson said.

Activities for adults included karaoke, life-size Sega, dance contests and games such as putt-putt golf, bingo and Trivial Pursuit.

Members of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority sponsored a walk-a-thon for sickle-cell anemia.

"This year we wanted to do something a little different, so we sponsored the walk to bring awareness to sickle-cell anemia," LaTongia Hayes, a senior majoring in sociology, and occupational therapy said.

University archivist dies after illness

By Danette Watt
Assistant News Editor

Louisa Bowen, archivist at Lovejoy Library, died Thursday morning at her home in St. Louis. She had been in ill health for several months.

Bowen had been a faculty member at the library since 1985. She was widely recognized for her professional leadership as an archivist, and served as curator of manuscripts at SIUC for five years.

"Louisa brought professionalism and good humor to everything she did as the university archivist and head of Research and Special Collections," Jay Starratt, dean of Lovejoy and Information Services, said. "She was a faculty member who will be greatly missed by SIUE students and staff."

"A university recommendation that the university archives in Lovejoy Library be named in Bowen's honor has been approved by Chancellor Nancy Belck and President Ted Sanders," Provost and Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs David Werner said.

"Louisa was a wonderful person, gentle and funny. Her death is a tragic loss for the university," Werner said.

Connie Stamper-Carr, assistant director of academic advising, was a good friend of Bowen's.

"She was a wonderful person, very good at her job, smart and funny. Even though she was somewhat removed from the students in her job, she liked them and always wanted them to do well," Stamper-Carr said.

She added that Bowen kept her spirits up throughout her illness. "She was a source of inspiration for me," she said.

A native of Detroit, Bowen received her bachelor's degree in English at Skidmore College and complete a master's degree in library science at Wayne State University and a second master's in history at New York University.

She is survived by her husband, Paul Anderson, and three children, Eli, Ben and Joey.

A campus memorial service will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. in the library auditorium.

Gas leak causes another evacuation

Students at the Residence Hall have grown accustomed to the fire alarms going off at all hours, but this time it was for real.

At 7:30 p.m. Monday two pumpers and a rescue truck sped up to the Residence Hall with lights flashing and sirens wailing as once again the hall was evacuated after the smell of gas was detected on 3-West.

Lakendra Moffett, a freshman resident, alerted the front desk when she smelled gas, and the resident assistant called the fire department.

"We located the gas leak in a malfunctioning hot-water boiler and shut off the power source. A back-up unit will provide hot water until the boiler can be repaired," Larry Best, acting captain of the Edwardsville Fire Department, said.

Laura Morlock, resident of 2-South was in the shower washing her hair when the alarm was sounded.

"We've had some problems, but this is the first for a gas leak," she said.

Freshman Devon Broomfield said that she was getting ready to eat when the alarm went off.

"We have our coats, jogging pants and shoes laid out on our desk at night so we can get ready to leave if the alarm goes off," she added.

Freshman Dan Sergott said, "This is about the ninth time, I think we should have a fire department on campus."

"I was getting ready for bed," resident Lakita Middlebrook, said. "It's aggravating because it was raining last time and I'm tired of it."

The students remained calm through the ordeal.

As the students filtered back into the Residence Hall one student called out, "See ya' in two weeks!" to the firemen.

The firemen on the scene just chuckled and replied, "See you next time."

New wildfires hit California

AP — Two new wildfires struck southern California, Sunday, killing one person and forcing neighborhoods closest to a 600-acre fire, to evacuate. The fires raced through San Bernardino and Riverside counties, about 60 miles east of Los Angeles. The neighborhoods were saved when winds shifted after the fires were within a quarter-mile of the homes.

Firefighters kept a close watch for flare-ups in previously burned areas after winds gusted to 35 mph. Nearly 40,000 acres have burned in the week-old series of fires.

Officials deny coup attempt by army

AP — Gen. Mohammed Sanousi Ahmed denied reports Sunday that the army tried to topple the Islamic-oriented government of President Omar el-Bashir of Sudan. The official military spokesman said reports of a coup attempt were unfounded and “circulated by those who don’t want to see stability in Sudan”.

Egypt’s Middle East News Agency said Saturday that at least 10 army colonels were arrested for plotting to overthrow el-Bashir. It was the third report of a coup attempt in Sudan this year. The country’s economy is in a shambles, in part, because of its 13-year civil war.

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale students riot

AP — Hundreds of SIUC students broke store windows and threw rocks, bricks and bottles at police in what is turning out to be traditional pre-Halloween revelry. Police Chief Don Strom said at least 27 people were arrested, a night after three people were arrested during a smaller riot.

Four police officers were injured in the three-hour fracas early Sunday and the windows of eight businesses were broken, but there were no reports of looting. Early Saturday, party-goers had torn down street signs and destroyed barricades in a 90-minute melee.

About 2,000 people stampeded through the streets in 1994, overturning two cars and breaking several windows on the portion of U.S. 51 known as “The Strip”. Police made more than 100 arrests that year.

Granite City man accused in child pornography ring

COLLINSVILLE — A Granite City man was on business in Southeast Asia and had returned to Los Angeles when he was informed of charges against him of three counts of child pornography and two counts of aggravated sexual assault. Ernest Trawick III, 44, was booked Saturday into the Madison County jail after being held in California. He is accused of running a child pornography ring from his Granite City home and videotaping sexual acts during the last three years, police said. He is being held without bond.

Remember while you're celebrating with your families the reason for the season

As we are quickly approaching the holiday season, I just thought I'd send a friendly reminder to my fellow students here at SIUE. Thanksgiving is a time to be with family and eat a hearty meal, usually turkey and dressing along with various other foods which have been prepared by a parent, spouse or friend. Christmas is a time to give gifts as an expression of love, or maybe just to let that special person know that you're thinking of him or her, and that they're not alone. Very often during Christmas we go out, spend lots of money, even run up our charge cards, and spend the following year getting ourselves out of debt.

Well, friends, I'd like to remind you of the "real" reason both these holidays are celebrated. It's a time to give thanks to the almighty creator, "Jesus". I realize that there are many different religions in which the name may differ; however, the reason is the same. Let us remember to take a moment to give thanks to Him who has brought us thus far. Thank Him for what He has already done and for what He's going to do for you.

Being a college student is no easy task and neither is having the will to stay and finish school. Put self aside for a moment and ask yourself, "What has He done for me lately?" Perhaps I can help by naming a few: He allowed you to wake up this morning, you have clothes to put on your back (even if they are not the latest fashion), you have breath or you wouldn't be reading this letter, and you're in college (an opportunity many don't have) whether you're a good student or not.

These are just a few immediate blessings that don't really require a lot of thought. Things that we tend to take for granted. Remember, it takes less than one minute to say "thank you".

'Take advantage of SIUE's wealth of opportunity — get involved'

As students at this university, do we really know where our money goes? Maybe it's time for the reminder that students sometimes get, that jolts their memories as to where the drain-pipes of their wallets lead. We all pay fees in our tuition that get channeled into different facets of the university. We often view tuition as a lump sum bill with no consideration for where each dollar goes.

Tuition fees are broken down into various categories such as athletic fees, university center fees, textbook rental fees, as well as a few others. Unfortunately, these fees are often just blindly paid (eventually) though we may never actually reap the benefits of utilizing them.

As the old saying goes, "What you put into it, is what you get out of it." So after students identify where particular fees (such as for the University Center or Athletics) go, they can then maximize the potential of their dollar by getting involved in student organizations and attending student-sponsored events. For instance, we all helped pay for the recent Homecoming activities sponsored by the Homecoming committee. Also, we are all paying for upcoming events like Tons of Fun organized by the University Wellness Program and the K.N.B. EFX Group, Inc. special effects demonstration sponsored by the University Center Board.

I realize that these typical avenues are not always possible for every student due to family or occupational obligations, but, at the very least, take a walk and see what SIUE provides to us all — one of the most aesthetically pleasing areas in the midwest to receive an education.

I've witnessed many students who convince themselves that they do not have the time to get involved. I've also witnessed students who didn't think they had time until they gave it a try and found ways to rearrange their schedule to accommodate. It is a simple fact of life these days that employers scan resumes for extra-curricular activities, and if you don't have any, you don't have a job either.

Avoid the PCP syndrome (That's Parking lot-Class-Parking Lot)! Take advantage of SIUE's wealth of opportunity. At least, go for a walk once in a while and enjoy other things than just your textbooks, professors and homework. Apathy sucks! (For more information regarding involvement and events, contact the Kimmel Leadership Center in the University Center.)

Exercise your right to vote on Nov. 5

What does Tuesday, Nov. 5, mean to you? Maybe you have a test or a paper due, perhaps a meeting at work. Whatever it is, most of you are probably too busy to be bothered. In the unfortunate case that the above is true, let me let you in on a little secret, Nov. 5th is the day on which the General Election of the United States is held. It truly disturbs me that so many Americans, especially college students, choose not to vote.

In the next four years, most of our lives will drastically change. We could be buying homes, maybe starting or even changing careers. One thing is for certain, we will be paying taxes. We do have a right to decide where this money goes, but without your vote, you let someone else speak for you. Your comments like, "my vote doesn't matter," or "what difference can I make?" are poor excuses at best.

Women and minorities were forced to fight for their right to vote, so why is it that they often do not? Each one of us has the right to vote, yet so few actually do.

Our ancestors fought for an ideal called democracy and a country based upon such. It makes me sick when Americans do not take advantage of our rights. I hope that just one person that reads this will actually change their mind on Nov. 5. Everyone of us has a voice, and for those of you who are too busy or cannot be bothered, I never want to hear you complain about your taxes or your rights, you had your chance.

Tribes meet for Powwow

By Danette Watt
Assistant News Editor

A half-dozen traders ringed the Goshen Lounge, and spectators watched dancers in the Meridian ballroom during last weekend's sixth annual powwow held on campus.

The powwow was co-sponsored by TRIBE, the Native American student organization, and SIUE's chapter of the American Indian Science and Engineering Society.

A powwow is a ceremony that celebrates Native American spirituality. Central to the essence of this spirituality, and focal point of the powwow, is the drum, whose beat represents the heartbeat of Mother Earth and her people.

"It felt like a family gathering," Julie Armbruster, president of TRIBE, said Monday. "I think it turned out great. Everyone was happy and seemed to be having a good time."

The crowd moved indoors Sunday because of rain but that didn't seem to dampen anyone's spirits.

"We've been here only for 15 or 20 minutes, but we're enjoying ourselves," Traci Stroder said, whose son, Brendan Carpenter, attends SIUE. She was admiring worry beads being sold by Sandra and Tom Huddleston.

Nearby, Sam and Glenda Begay were selling silver and turquoise jewelry. This was their first year at SIUE; they were filling in for relatives who couldn't attend. The Begay's — he is of the Navaho tribe, she's a Pueblo — said they can beat everyone else's jewelry prices.

"We spend between $3,200 to $4,500 a month on sheet silver so we can sell our jewelry at a lower cost. And lately, we've been getting our turquoise from China. It's cheaper and a better quality," Sam Begay said.

Terry Packineau, a representative from the American Indian Center of St. Louis, said the center is a social, economic and cultural advocacy group. It receives much of its funding from state agencies and federal programs.

Packineau, of the Hidatsa tribe, is also a member of the American Indian Movement. AIM operates strictly from donations. Most recently the group worked to get a law passed in July that makes it a crime to remove sacred objects and other artifacts from gravesites.

Hayes said the walk would make people aware of the disease that has genetically affected people of African-American origin.

"You can walk around the track one time and while you're walking you can hear the entertainment," Hayes said.

Jennifer Whipkey, 23, a second year psychology graduate student, was one of the organizers of this year's event.

"The event is going well. Karaoke always draws a good crowd. We were pleased that all organizations were on time and well prepared," she said.

Lawton said she was pleased with the outcome of this year's Tons-of-Fun.

"It was really good this year. The flow was pretty good. You always worry about an event this big flowing smoothly," she said.

Halloween safety: the key to a fun night!

By Angela Jinks
Lifestyle Reporter

Trick or treating safety is very important for all children to remember during the Halloween season.

Recently, Dennis Plew and Chuck Thomas of the SIUE campus police, spent the morning with 2-5 year olds from the East St. Louis campus daycare center. Plew discussed a few basic safety tips with the children. This was done in an effort to provide children with useful knowledge during Halloween.

Plew told the children to make sure their parents check any candy before they eat it. And that any candy they receive should be wrapped in the original wrappers, to be sure it has not been tampered with.

He also said that children should remember to never go out alone, and it is of the utmost importance they stay in groups. Younger children should always stay with a parent, guardian or an older brother or sister.

"Don't go where you don't know," Plew said.

He reminded them of the importance of staying in their own neighborhood so they will not get lost. He was urging them to stay in an area where there is a greater chance they know the people around them.

Even if they are in neighborhoods they are familiar with, children should stay with someone else at all times, and be sure not to go off alone.

Children should not go into anyone's house either. This includes neighbors and people they know. Parents should stay with their children while they are trick or treating so they know where the children are during the night.

Children who are going out trick or treating should not ride a bike. Many groups of people are out during the night, and it is easier to have a collision, possibly resulting in injuries. It is also difficult for children to ride a bicycle in a costume. This could also result in an accident, injuring the rider and others around him.

Costume safety is very important for all children. There are a few simple guidelines to follow to keep trick or treaters safe. The first, is to make sure the costume fits. If it is too long, the child can easily trip. If it is too small, it is difficult for the child to move. If a child is wearing a mask, the holes should be big enough to see and breathe through easily. Face painting is an easy alternative to wearing a mask, it also allows much more freedom for the child in moving and breathing. The costume itself should have some bright colors or reflective tape. This helps with the child walking around in the dark. In a dark costume, a trick-or-treater is hard to see and easy to run into or run over. A costume with bright or reflective colors is hard to miss.

Halloween is a fun night for children of all ages. Remember a few tips to keep the children safe so everyone can have a happy Halloween.

Spooky Flick picks for guys and ghouls

By Corey Stulce
Assistant Lifestyle Editor

If you're tired of watching "Halloween 2", "Friday the 13th" or "A Nightmare on Elm Street" for the umpteenth year in a row on Halloween night, here are a few other movie choices that will conjure up some frights.

For a great story and nice costumes, check out "Nightbreed". It comes from the mind of Clive Barker, and stars Craig Sheffer as a man who might become a serial killing beast at night. He gets killed and enters a cult of un-dead demons who live under a graveyard. Toss in some top notch special effects and Davis Cronenberg as a devilish-psychiatrist, and this one will creep out even the devil worshiper in the crowd.

Next is George Romero's zombie epic "Day of the Dead". This is Romero's third zombie movie where a few civilians are trapped in a mall crawling with the flesh eaters. It is very violent and disturbing, but Romero does it with class. Some very funny "zombies getting knocked around" scenes as well.

The '60s had some great wacky slasher films and one of the best is "Gruesome Twosome". It's about an old woman who has a wig shop, and gets her merchandise by trapping young women in her basement and having her mentally challenged son, Rodney, cut off their scalps with an electric knife.

"The Hidden" has some great suspense and action. It stars the always weird Kyle MacLachlan as an alien posing as an FBI agent, tracking an evil creature who jumps from human to human in insect form to drain their life force and cause them to murder. The giant spider-creature leaving the humans' bodies is grossly entertaining. Part of the fun is seeing a little girl who is possessed by the creature go on a crazed rampage.

A very disturbing film recently re-released by Troma Home Video is "Bloodsucking Freaks". It is a violent tale of an off-off Broadway show and white slave trade. Some of the bloody acts include: cutting off a woman's feet from the ankles down, drilling a hole into a woman's head and inserting a giant drinking straw and a dart board game played with someone's rear-end.

One of the most violent, funny and bloody movies ever made is "Dead Alive", a tongue-in-cheek masterpiece from Peter Jackson. It involves a rabid monkey who bites a woman, turning her into a cannibalistic zombie. The climax involves a man wreaking havoc on people with a lawn mower. Some of the most imaginative ways to see people killed are seen in this movie. Be sure to get the unrated version for ultimate gore.

Finally, check out "Near Dark", a rarely seen vampire flick from 1987. It features a few members from the "Aliens" cast including Bill Paxton and Lance Henriksen as a family of vampires traveling the country in a van, and sucking the blood out of a few good ol' boys. Blood flows aplenty in this one. One of the best scenes involves Paxton slitting a biker's throat with a razor-tipped boot.

All of these films have the "Gorey" seal of approval, and of course can be found in the local video store. Besides, any one of these beats hanging around in the garden waiting for "The Great Pumpkin" to appear.

Cougars trip up No. 16 Truman State

By Brett Licata
Assistant Sports Editor

The SIUE men's soccer team was minus two of their defensive specialists, but managed to upset No. 16-ranked Truman St. on Sunday.

The Cougars knocked off the 4th ranked team in the region 4-2 at Guelker Field to keep their post season chances alive.

Sophomore Jake Ashley dented the net first for SIUE in the 24th minute from Darren Snyder who also assisted on the second goal 11 minutes later, off the foot of Jerry Reed.

"We came out on fire in the first half," head coach Ed Huneke said. "We were taking a bunch of shots and playing very aggressive."

Truman St. came back with a goal three minutes before half-time to cut the SIUE lead in half.

Jason Maxfield added another SIUE tally in the 70th minute to give the Cougars another two goal advantage, but Truman St. wouldn't die. They scored eight minutes later to make it 3-2.

SIUE secured the victory when Mike Novak scored to put the Cougars up 4-2 with nine minutes to go.

"We really came through on offense," Huneke said. "Novak scored an important goal and Steve Van Dyke played a good game."

Huneke gives credit to David King and Andy Peck who filled in for Brett Darby, who suffered an ankle injury 10 minutes into the contest, and Doug Hartmann, who had stomach problems before the game and did not play.

"King and Peck stepped up for us off the bench,"

Huneke said. "Our defense did a great job."

Last Thursday, the Cougars battled Great Lakes Valley Conference foe, Missouri-St. Louis to a 2-1 loss.

SIUE struck first when Todd Hunter put the ball past the UMSL keeper in the 22nd minute. Missouri-St. Louis tied the contest at the 36 :22 mark and won the game on a goal with four minutes remaining.

"We played well, but came up short," Huneke said. "We couldn't get our shots off. They scored a very good goal with four minutes left that was really unexpected."

SIUE plays Lewis and Wisconsin-Parkside on the road this weekend in a couple of important GLVC games.

Huneke said, "These are teams ranked ahead of us so we need to win to stay in the playoff hunt."

Soccer deserves accolades for great season

Saturday the SIUE women's soccer team lost a heartbreaker to the University of Missouri-St. Louis 2-1 in the Semi-finals of the GLVC tournament.

The Cougars were ranked No. 2 in the tournament and were hoping for a re-match with No. 1 St. Joseph's, who beat them in a regular season game just before the tournament.

Unfortunately, that never happened and unfortunately the Cougars will have a tough time getting to post season after the semi-final exit.

Todd Spann

But no matter what happens at the very end of this great year, the Cougars have accomplished many things that past SIUE women's soccer teams have not.

For one, the Cougars surpassed an old record for most wins in a single season.

This 14-win season will go down in the record books as a very memorable year.

We should also understand that this was done with just four seniors and three juniors.

The rest of the team are sophomores and freshmen. Plus the Cougars could add to their record number of wins when they finish out the season at the T.J's Pizza's Classic at UM-SL.

Another great accomplishment during the season was being ranked in the top five in the Country in Division II soccer.

There hasn't been a higher ranked Cougar soccer team since head coach Brian Korbmesmyer's been involved as a SIUE soccer coach.

Korbmesmyer has done a great job this year with his young squad and I hate to say this but we are going to expect big things next year.

But I think that is one expectation Korbmesmyer will love to have.

Congratulations on a great year.

Volleyball splits two GLVC games

By Brett Licata
Assistant Sports Editor

The SIUE volleyball team split their two Great Lakes Valley Conference games last weekend by defeating Quincy and falling to Missouri-St. Louis.

The Cougars needed only 58 minutes to dispose of GLVC rival Quincy 15-9, 15-5, 15-2 in Quincy, Ill., on Friday.

Sophomore Michelle Gilman led the Cougars with eight blocks and 16 kills while hitting .538. As a team, SIUE had 46 kills on 102 attempts for a .294 hitting percentage.

Christy Sheller was back in action after sitting out last Tuesday's match because of a sore ankle to lead the Cougars with 33 assists.

Saturday's meeting with UMSL saw a battle of two second place teams in their respective divisions of the GLVC.

Despite an evenly played game, the Cougars lost 15-8, 15-10, 15-11 to their conference opponent.

Gilman was the SIUE leader with 14 kills and five blocks. Aviston's Julie Litteken hit .308 with 11 kills on 26 attempts.

The loss puts the Cougars at 19-12 on the year with a 9-3 GLVC mark.

Next up for SIUE is a match against St. Francis in Springfield, Ill.
