Many different cultures are showcasing themselves this week on campus. International week, an annual campus event, concludes Saturday with International Night.

International Week is sponsored by the International Student Council and the University Center Board. The event highlights different cultures of students who have traveled from abroad to attend SIUE.

There are nearly 300 students from 19 countries enrolled in graduate and undergraduate studies.

Tuesday and Wednesday the international student organizations sponsored cultural awareness booths in the Goshen Lounge of the Morris University Center. Videos, clothing and other various bits of information could be found on a wide range of cultures.

International Week ends with International Night, a banquet and talent show. International night will be in the Meridian Ballroom and will feature an international buffet and performances celebrating the cultures of different lands.

Food of Indian, Pakistani, Spanish, French, African, Korean and Colombian origin will be featured. Doors open at 6 p.m. with dinner starting at 6:30 p.m., followed by the different cultural performances.

"We are expecting about 400 people to attend the function on Saturday," said Kiran Raghavapudi, president of the International Student Council.

Tickets for the event can be bought at Union Station and cost $4 for students and $8 for others.

"I think the event is very important. This is an event which brings forward all the cultures together and that will make the international students feel at home at SIUE," Raghavapudi said. "I think the event is well received. SIUE does have a lot of international students compared to other schools. The international community is very active in almost all the school events."

Karthik Nagappan, a native of India who is attending SIUE for his master's degree in electrical engineering, said SIUE does have a relatively large population of foreign students with the Indian culture being the most prevalent.

SIUE police officer trains with best

One SIUE police officer "followed the yellow brick road" last summer.

but ropes, tunnels and climbing nets.

Hays is a recent graduate of the FBI National Academy at Quantico, VA. She attended the school from late June to the mid-September and for 11 weeks took courses in career development with law enforcement officers from around the world.

"I was excited to be able to come back and find out how to best apply what I had learned to SIUE's police department," Hays said.

Hays said her experience was much like that of a college student. She attended day and night classes which required term papers and projects. Her courses included: violence in America, mass media and the police, human behavior and organizations, labor relations, legal issues for police administrators and a class on how to write grants. In addition

Hays and her classmates also had several physical training sessions per week.

Hays said the most valuable thing she experienced at Quantico was the interaction with other law enforcement agencies. There were 264 students in her class; she was among 14 women in the group. Hays maintained that the training was fair to all of the members of the class.

At the end of the 11-week session Hays and her classmates experienced the Yellow Brick Road, the 6.25-mile-long endurance and obstacle course at Quantico. Hays and eight of her classmates ran it together. No record had to be set. There was no time constraint. They just had to finish. Upon completion of the course, each person received a yellow-painted brick. Hays' is displayed on the bookshelf in her office.

"It was truly a unique experience," Hays said. "I wasn't a trainee in my 20s. I am in my 40s. It was something I definitely wanted to do. It was a personal challenge and it was fun."

Hot works in art show

BY KARA WOLF
ARTS REPORTER

"Wood, Fire, Clay" is the current exhibition featured in the New Wagner Gallery in the Art and Design Building. The collection is a personal endeavor of Professor Dan Anderson, head of ceramics at SIUE.

For almost 30 years, Anderson has been a huge part of the phenomenal success of the ceramics program offered at SIUE. Each work chosen by Anderson represents advancements that ceramics have made in the field of art.

The exhibit can be seen from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon to 3 p.m. on Saturday through Nov. 19.

Often considered a simple craft, ceramics is an intense creation of form through manipulation of soft clay. Adeptness and skill are procured by time and practice.

On Nov. 6 at 5:27 p.m., a faculty member reported she left her attache case in Room 1138 in Founders Hall. When she returned to the room, she discovered someone had stolen a credit card and a small amount of cash. There are no suspects or witnesses.

Burglary to motor vehicle

On Nov. 7 at 8:42 p.m., a woman reported someone stole a wallet from her van parked at the soccer stadium lot. The victim reported that she locked her van but there was no sign of forced entry.

Criminal defacement

On Nov. 8 at 11:40 p.m., a student reported that sometime between 9 p.m. on Nov. 6 and 11 p.m. on Nov. 8 someone damaged the antenna on her car parked in Lot 4. There are no suspects or witnesses.

Traffic accident

On Nov. 5 at 11:20 p.m., police investigated a traffic accident with injuries on South University Drive. A car driven by Howard Liner, 18, of Collinsville was driving north on University Drive when he lost control of his car and ran into a ditch. Liner was arrested for failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, leaving the scene of an injury accident, driving under the influence and operating an uninsured motor vehicle. Liner could not post bond and was taken to the Madison County Jail. A female passenger sustained injuries and was taken by ambulance to Anderson Hospital.

Deer struck

On Nov. 9 at 4:40 p.m., Marita Strube of Belleville reported she was driving south on University Drive when a deer ran from the woods and struck her car in the left side. The deer continued on into the woods. Strube sustained no injuries.

The ceramists featured in the exhibit use wood kilns as a firing method and the results are often grainy, textured, earth-toned and imperfectly shaped. Bottles, jars, barrels, vases and plates are among the many functional items created. Closed forms and anvils exist to suggest purposes beyond functionality of ceramic art.

Hays joined the SIUE police force in 1988 and has since risen to the rank of lieutenant. She is responsible for investigations, records and training. The FBI National Academy is usually open only to officers holding the rank of lieutenant or higher, but individual exceptions are occasionally allowed. Once accepted, the applicant usually waits two to four years to attend Quantico. Since 1935, 194 sessions have been held, producing more than 31,000 graduates from 123 different countries.

Tune in to student survey

Student Government is conducting a radio music survey of SIUE students. In the survey, Student Government is trying to find out students' favorite and least favorite styles of music as

Completed surveys should be dropped off in the Student Government office on the first floor of the Morris University Center in the Kimmel Leadership Center. For more information, contact Student Government at 650-3819.

Guest column Hurricane Mitch and Honduras

During the past weeks, Honduras, my native country, has suffered the most devastating and terrible tragedies. There has never been anything like Hurricane Mitch in Honduran history. In less than 72 hours, Mitch took complete cities and thousands of peoples' lives with him.

As of this writing, more than 7,000 Hondurans have died, 6,000 have disappeared and almost 6,000 have been placed in shelters around the country. Mitch caused general destruction to the Honduran territory.

Bridges, buildings, houses and fields with crops were literally wiped out by incessant storms, mudslides, unstoppable winds and floods. The level of the water was as high as a three-story house.

"Nightmare" would not be the right word to describe what my people are going through. All over the country, people are going without electricity, telephone communications, safe water, food, clothes and medicine. There is no communication among the different cities in the country, and rescue teams are doubling their efforts to help those who need the most. Seventy percent of the agricultural production has been lost, and there are areas that have been deleted off the map and communities that do not exist anymore.

Survivors can still be seen standing on houses' roofs waiting to be rescued. Some, after days with nothing to eat, eat leaves to mitigate their hunger until help arrives.

It is inexplicable what my husband and I feel for our families and people in Honduras. To know that the country we were born in is 60 percent smashed touches us so deeply, to the point that sleep is not necessary when families and friends are in danger and the hope of hearing from them is almost impossible.

We really want to thank all those people (friends, classmates and professors) who have inquired about our families and shown concern for Honduras. We really want to do something for Honduras and our people, even if we are the only Hondurans on the SIUE campus.

That is why we wrote this letter for the purposes of informing you and, at the same time, asking for your help. If you have an extra sweater, an extra blanket or anything else, please donate it to the Honduran people who are in need. Food and medicine (pain relievers, antibiotics, anti-diarrheals, etc.) can also be donated.

You can send your donations to World Relief/Honduran Relief Effort, P.O. Box WRC, Dept. 3, Wheaton, Ill. 60189, or you can contact me at 650-4097 or jzelaya@siue.edu and we will take your donation to the World Relief in Wheaton.

For any monetary donations, checks can be sent to the American Red Cross/Honduran Relief Effort, c/o Marcia Wickenhauses, 810 Main St., Alton, Ill. 62002-2820. Thanks in advance.

Letter to the Editor

Androgenous apathy?

While talking with some of my friends about the Marilyn Manson concert and the Alestle column that covered it, I came up with an analogy of what it was like for Marilyn Manson to play at the Fox Theatre. To get the proper effect, you would need to begin with a wonderfully appointed dining room lit with soft candlelight. Then you would take your best crystal and china and set the table with exacting precision. Then to begin the meal, you would violently vomit onto each place setting. Of course, the effect would be much enhanced if you got someone who was sick with the flu to do the serving. And if it were the stomach flu, you might get the added bonus of diarrhea. Then it could be sort of a weird dinner theater/performance art kind of thing. Reviewing such an event would be like picking through the pieces of slime of it all.

Of course, people do have the right to serve predigested cuisine and hold concerts wherever they like and the Alestle should cover them if they want. Also, I realize that my analogy will likely not affect anyone but those who are already convinced; it is futile to shock the depraved with depravity. They will only laugh in your face. But still that doesn't mean that one cannot try or that one should simply lament our collective slide toward being intrigued, amused and then, finally, bored by the twisted and distorted. I also know that it takes courage to hope and believe in things like Truth, Beauty and Love, and that even the first step, to consider giving up and replacing cynicism and despair, may seem impossible. But it is certainly a step worth taking, and if it is taken, I think the needed courage will be given.

Mainstream sado-masochism

Danielle Belton

Every night around 8 p.m., my parents watch Geraldo Rivera's CNBC show "Rivera Live" to yell at the screen. For about an hour, Rivera gives his skewed perception of the world under the guise that he is an unbiased journalist. Names of defendants are read with a feeling of disgust and a furrowing of brows. Rivera utters President Bill Clinton and Monica Lewinsky's names with venom.

If Rivera is making any attempt to seek out the truth and give the American public a better understanding of the issues at hand, he, like many other journalists, is failing miserably. Bitterly cynical, Rivera and many news networks today seem to have made up their minds about our public figures. They've decided they are all corrupt, lying philanderers, and if any news tries to tell otherwise, it's not treated as news. The trend in journalism appears to be changing from cautious skepticism to bitter cynicism. And the trend is turning off Americans.

Many critics and journalists alike have contended that until President Richard Nixon and Watergate the media had covered the White House and politics with a respectful, yet skeptical reserve. Politicians cheated on their wives as much as they do now, but the media felt no need to venture into the tawdry details of our public officials' sexual habits. Then Watergate, the mother of all news stories, broke and journalism hasn't been the same since. Every political person is now a suspect, every president a potential sinner waiting to be exposed.

Unfortunately, a scandal as hard-hitting as Watergate hasn't exposed itself so far, but it hasn't been for the journalists' lack of trying. Since then, the media have been on an endless search for another Watergate to the point that they often dub lesser White House scandals with the suffix "-gate." Since the 1960s, we've had Iran-Contragate, White Watergate, Filegate, Travelgate and Monicagate.

This only shows how media cynicism has worsened. Instead of a crop of hard-hitting, wiry, skeptical journalists in the field, we have a gaggle of cynical locusts desecrating the field before they destroy it.

Clinton was a marked man before George Bush's seat even got cold. Denied the usual honeymoon period for presidents, he set the precedent for our public officials' getting pounced upon from day one. Four of the five new so-called "-gates" named above are Clinton White House scandals. If the current trashing Clinton is receiving is a portent of what is to come in the future, what is going to happen to a nation that watches this daily dose of Clinton carnage every night?

Journalists don't want to appear soft when handling a public official, but with their urge to tear down public figures before our representatives get a chance to try, they are ruining their own reputations with the public. Many Americans dislike the media as much as they dislike the politicians whom the media expose. Many people have become apathetic toward both groups, resulting in the low voter turnouts we see today. People don't want to be associated with so much cynicism and negativity. Potential voters turn off their sets in disgust as they watch the media attack the politicians, then watch the politicians manipulate the media to dismember each other.

Every day the cynicism grows and grows, and with Clinton's impeachment proceedings dangling above our heads, it seems the cynicism machine shows no sign of stopping anytime soon. Therefore, public distrust will continue as the media go from being the voice of the people to the voice of themselves. Instead of being the people's advocates or watchdogs, today's news media are quickly turning into a group of sado-masochists who get their pleasures from the destruction of others.

Survey looks at the needs of nontraditional students

BY DANA MILES
NEWS STRINGER

Not everyone graduates high school and goes straight to college.

Imagine what it would be like to work, cook, clean, bathe kids, maintain a relationship with a spouse and then read two chapters from your physics text, write a two-page paper for English and pray to God that you get more than four hours of sleep that night.

This is an example of a day in the life of a nontraditional student.

Nontraditional students are students who have other full-time responsibilities besides school. These students are men and women who are often older than traditional students, have children, are married and/or work full time outside of school.

Kirsteen Laidlaw is a nontraditional student pursuing her master's in social work. Laidlaw is assisting in developing a survey of nontraditional students that is intended to aid in improving services. With the help of Christa Oxford, assistant vice chancellor, Enrollment Management and Registrar, she will be mailing out a needs assessment survey/questionnaire to all graduate and undergraduate students who are over a certain age and qualify as nontraditional students. The graduate students' surveys will be mailed out next week, and the surveys for undergraduates will be mailed out two weeks after that. All students should receive the surveys by Thanksgiving.

"The purpose of the survey is for the university to find out how we can improve the services we provide for nontraditional students. It is harder to receive information from nontraditional students because they have other commitments and time is limited," Oxford said.

"Most academic systems are set up for traditional students. We want to see if the system that is set up is actually helping or hindering the success of nontraditional students, and if it is hindering, how we can improve the system to where it becomes beneficial," Laidlaw said.

Oxford and Laidlaw believe the survey is the most effective way to begin changing campus life and making it easier for nontraditional students. It is very important that all students who receive the survey complete and return it in a timely manner.

A call for all

You know what's the matter with the world today? Too much to mention actually, but I'll note one thing in particular: People don't express their opinions and feelings like they should. That's what I'm here for. My name is Sheri McWhirter and I was hired as Lifestyle editor in mid-October. I'm a sophomore in mass communications as well as the resident assistant on 1 North in Woodland Hall.

Well, being that this is the section dedicated to lifestyles, I'll briefly describe what that typically means. The usual suspects when it comes to lifestyles are fashion trends, music, movies and books. That's why you see a lot of reviews on these pages. But I'm starting to think there should be more.

I want to cover issues in the Lifestyle section that aren't the usual suspects. Granted, fashion trends, music, movies and books are all important entities to lifestyles. But isn't there more? Can anybody really understand the spectrum of lifestyles on this campus viewed only through those topics? Of course not. And personally, I like reading about things other than the usual suspects. Don't you? Or is The Alestle the only outlet of information that you cherish enough to read? I certainly hope so.

So here's the deal: If you e-mail me at smcwhir@siue.edu and tell me what you want to read about in the Lifestyle pages, I'll put it there. Promise. OK, I'll really try. Also, tell me what you don't like. Tell me what you do like. Just tell me. Do you like what I've done with the page since Corey Stulce stepped down as Lifestyle editor? I need some feedback.

Hey, by the way, want a job?

I need people interested in any aspect of any kind of lifestyle (that means everybody) who has good writing skills (not everybody) and is self-motivated (definitely not everybody). If you fit the bill, get an employment referral from the Office of Student Employment and drop by The Alestle in Room 2022 in University Center.

REPORT

After eight months of recording at Mr. Small's Funhouse in their hometown of Pittsburgh, Rusted Root has successfully created an organic sounding record true to their nature. The result is the band's self-titled album which is the third album with recording label Mercury. This new music displays Rusted Root's expanded instrumentation and is a potent mixture of Latin, African, Eastern, soul, rock, and traditional American music.

With the assistance of producer Susan Rogers (Barenaked Ladies, Prince), Rusted Root has woven these influences together to create a focused, energetic and exciting new collection of songs that is without question their most inspired album to date.

Rusted Root's 12 tracks include the exuberant "Magenta Radio," "Rising Sun" and "Live A Long Time." The new album also includes Root's version of the Rolling Stones' classic "You Can't Always Get What You Want" performed with special guests Hot Tuna, who shared support duties on the 1998 Furthur Festival.

Rusted Root has established itself as a major touring entity, headlining venues all across America and Canada. In addition, they've been fortunate enough to tour with some of the most legendary icons in rock music such as The Grateful Dead, Page and Plant, Santana, The Allman Brothers Band, Sting and The Dave Matthews Band. Rusted Root is dedicated to a myriad of environmental and social causes. They regularly invite groups such as Greenpeace, The Rainforest Action Network and Planned Parenthood to distribute information at their shows. This past fall, Rusted Root set up a food drive program at their shows which benefited local food banks in each city they performed in, including the 1998 Furthur Festival at Riverport Amphitheatre.

Rusted Root will hit the road headlining dates throughout the fall and into 1999, in support of their new release.

News from the foul line

By Todd Spann

The call came in and the news was good for the SIUE women's soccer team.

For the third time in the last six years, the Cougars are going to the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division II Tournament.

The 13-2-2 sixth-ranked Cougars will be facing the ninth-ranked Screaming Eagles of Southern Indiana University.

This all takes place at 1 p.m. Saturday at SIUE's Ralph Korte Stadium.

Let's all be honest and say soccer is more fun to play than watch, but this is our team in the NCAA tournament and it is about time we supported our team.

It could be worse. We could have the Illinois football team.

NBA

The players are an easy target to point fingers at for all the NBA's troubles.

But let's be fair and remember this whole ordeal is a lockout, not a strike.

The owners have locked out the players from playing basketball because of differences in how much money players can make.

Well, I bet Larry Hughes is still happy he left for the NBA.

Rumors

Rumors are flying in Major League Baseball.

The Cardinals are supposed to be willing to offer ace pitcher Kevin Brown $50 million.

The New York Yankees and the Atlanta Braves are rumored to be getting everybody.

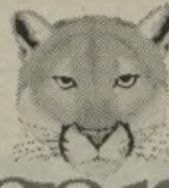

Randy Johnson is rumored to be headed to Cleveland.

Along with staying in San Diego, third baseman Ken Caminiti listed Houston and Chicago as places he would like to play.

American League batting champion Bernie Williams is expected to go to Arizona or Texas.

Cougars get the call

Jill Stevens/Alestle

Janece Friederich's 17 goals and nine assists led the women's soccer team to a 13-2-2 record and their third trip in six years to the NCAA Division II Tournament. The Cougars finished the regular season ranked sixth in the country and will battle ninth-ranked Southern Indiana this Saturday at SIUE's Ralph Korte Stadium.

Women's soccer team plays Southern Indiana in first round of the NCAA tournament

BY TODD SPANN
SPORTS EDITOR

It was the sound of relief when SIUE women's soccer head coach Brian Korbesmeyer relayed the message, "We got a bid."

The announcement made Monday evening puts the SIUE women's soccer team in its third National Collegiate Athletic Association Division II Tournament in the last six years.

Two weeks ago, the Cougars looked like a shoo-in, but a 4-2 loss to Northern Kentucky University this past Saturday in the Great Lakes Valley Conference Tournament left some doubts of receiving a bid.

Inside: NCAA Tournament brackets

"We were really flat in the first half and they have a young aggressive team that took it to us," Korbesmeyer said. "But the nature of this loss hurt our pride and the girls are ready to redeem themselves."

The Cougars will get their chance at 1 p.m. Saturday at SIUE's Ralph Korte Stadium against Southern Indiana, a team the Cougars beat earlier in the year 2-1.

The game pits the nation's sixth- and ninth-ranked teams and gives an exciting first-round matchup.

"It's going to be a tough game, but when you have the top 16 teams together, any matchup will be tough," Korbesmeyer said.

The Cougars are healthy and ready to play, and that has been a major contributor to getting to post-season.

"One of our keys to this season was that we had no serious, season-threatening injuries," Korbesmeyer said.

Taking the old cliché "the third time is a charm," the Cougars are looking to prove it true.

"We have to take the next step," Korbesmeyer said. "That is play harder, quicker and smarter than our opponent and learn from what we didn't do last time."

Cougars, Tigers and Bears — Andy Korbesmeyer

Well, there's a lot going on and I've got a lot on my mind, so sit back, relax and enjoy.

□ The Rams beat the Bears, the Blues beat the Blackhawks and Mizzou will beat the Illini when they meet in December.

□ I'm sure you've already heard all the jokes about Jesse "The Body" Ventura, so I won't subject you to any more.

□ Cade McNown for Heisman.

□ Is anyone surprised that the University of Cincinnati's basketball program is on NCAA probation?

□ Randy Johnson's agent found out that the Astros' highest-rated television games were the two starts Johnson made. Johnson's agent is using this for leverage in getting Johnson a fat new contract.

□ The average yearly salary in major-league baseball last year was $1.3 million.

□ The SIUE women's soccer team will be in the national tournament this year. The game is at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Members of all the other sports teams that are in town should be at this game. If you made the tournament, you would want people there to support you.

□ The University of Illinois basketball team had a freshman taking the last shot of regulation and overtime in a loss against Wake Forest Tuesday night. If that is their best option, the Illini could be in trouble.

□ The SIUE men's basketball team, coached by Jack Margenthaler and Scott Eggleston, may struggle over the long haul during the GLVC schedule, but an enthusiastic team can compete with anyone on any given night.

Men's Soccer

Disappointing season derives from injuries and inexperience

BY BRETT LICATA
SPORTS WRITER

Injuries and inexperience made the 1998 season a disappointing one for the SIUE men's soccer team.

Head coach Ed Huneke didn't plan on having to play as many freshmen as he did, but a season filled with bad luck had a number of his experienced players fall out of the lineup because of season-ending injuries.

"When you lose four key players to season-ending injuries, it makes it difficult," Huneke said. "But I was impressed by the amount of passion this team played with despite the hardships we faced."

The Cougars finished the season with a 7-11-1 record overall and a 5-6 mark in the Great Lakes Valley Conference.

After a slow start to the season where SIUE won only one of its first six games, the Cougars seemed to be on a roll late in the year, winning three of their last four.

"I'm pleased with the improvement we showed as the year went on," Huneke said. "Toward the end of the year, we were really clicking."

A heartbreaking game against Quincy University in the conference tournament last week ended the season for SIUE. The Cougars managed to tie the No. 2 team in the conference 2-2 as Matt Little scored his 12th and 13th goals of the year. But Quincy moved on to the second round with a win in the shootout to stifle SIUE's chance of an upset.

"This was a tremendous soccer game. It was very hard-fought and emotional," Huneke said. "Neither team deserved to lose, but in this situation, we needed a winner."

One of the characteristics of the Cougars that hurt them this year was their inability to win one-goal games. SIUE had eight one-goal contests go in favor of its opponents.

Little led the Cougars in scoring this season with 13 goals and four assists for a total of 30 points. He ends his career at SIUE with 26 goals and 15 assists. Little plans to move on to the professional level in the near future.

"He's highly respected by players, coaches and fans," Huneke said. "I'd say he's one of the best players that I've ever coached."

Todd Hunter ends his SIUE career after an injury-filled four years with the program. Hunter was second on the team in scoring with six goals and four assists for 16 points.

"What Todd lacks in physique, he makes up for in skill and smarts," Huneke said.

Kivid Kikama is a defensive anchor that Huneke will lose next year.

"I've been impressed with him for the last two years," Huneke said. "Kivid is so good on the ball."

Huneke will also lose talented defenders Jeff Stevens and Doug Hartmann to graduation.

"They are both hard-working and aggressive players," Huneke said. "Jeff and Doug are excellent marking backs."

Chad Richardson will take over in goal as Chris Koenig ends his stay at SIUE.

"Chris did a great job for us," Huneke said. "I'm confident that Chad can step up next year. He got better and better as the year went on."

One of the positive things that came out of this season was that many of the young players gained valuable game experience by filling in for the injured starters.

"It's fortunate for the freshman class to get the experience they did," Huneke said.
