Nance elected Student Body President

Sen. Hobson defeated by over 100 votes

By Brian Walsh
News Editor

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville elected new student representatives for the upcoming school year.

This year, unlike last, there was competition for building some different seats that were long run? unfilled. Two candidates for the position as President of the Student Body. Two people ran for Vice President. And there were 14 candidates bidding for 12 open seats.

The student body also got into the act with high voter turnout.

turnout was up by over 300 ballots over last year, even though a few students did not care about the elections.

Voter turn-out up but few still apathetic

Student senate hopefuls waiting anxiously for the student body's votes to come in, maybe waiting a long time.

"I didn't vote because I really don't care," Amanda Riley, a junior majoring in Nursing said.

"I don't see the student senate doing anything for me," she added.

"Student senate, what student senate?" Ann Henkins, also a junior in Nursing said jokingly, "Actually, I was just too lazy."

So what are student fees really used for?

By David Weil
News Reporter

Tuition costs are not the only fees students must pay when attending SIUE. In addition to standard tuition costs, a full time student will pay an additional $270.50 in student fees for the Fall 1996 semester.

Most students are either unaware of the exact cost of the fees or do not know why the fees are assessed. Student Janet Kromraj said, "I think they are roughly 60% of our costs. I really don't know, but I think they're expensive."

"I think they pay for athletics but I don't know. Probably they pay for things I don't use," Kromraj went on to say.

Tuition revenue and state funding provide money for teacher salaries, classroom equipment and other academic costs. Student fees are then assessed to cover additional costs of auxiliary operations.

According to Randy Rock, Associate Vice-President in the Office of Student Affairs, state guidelines prevent the use of state funds for many non-academic purposes. The University Center and the Student Fitness Center are funded entirely by student fees and operating profits.

When the university felt the need for a Student Fitness Center, "Students were asked to vote to determine if students were willing to pay additional fees for its construction," said Rock. The center provides services to faculty members as well, but they must pay the same price as the students for use of the facility.

Athletic programs at SIUE are also supported by student fees. Without student fees athletic programs would be forced to raise prices for attending events.

The Student Welfare and Activity fee is utilized in a variety of ways. In addition to campus recreational activities, these fees provide students with medical care at the Student Health Services Center and fund the student legal services program. "The legal services department has limitations. It can't represent students in court or file motions, but it can provide free legal counseling," said Rock.

These fees also provide funding for numerous student activities and organizations such as Student Government, Student Offices and the Alestle.

Textbook rental costs, which save students from the expense of purchasing textbooks on their own are also included as a student fee.

in brief

Dole sweeps voting

• Declaring that "nothing can stop us now," Sen. Bob Dole won presidential primaries Tuesday in Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin to secure his grasp on the Republican presidential nomination. Dole captured most of the 219 delegates at stake, propelling him close to the 996 delegates needed for nomination.

Perot says he'll run if party asks

• Ross Perot said Tuesday that he would run for president again and "give it everything I have" if members of his new Reform Party want him as their candidate. Perot made his comments as aides worked to put his name on the November ballot in Texas, Florida and as many as a dozen more states.

Australia to spare Koalas from shooting

• After a storm of protest, officials have abandoned a plan to kill 2,000 koala bears in favor of a gentler form of population control. Officials say they will consider relocating the koalas from Kangaroo Island to another part of Australia. About 5,000 koalas live on the island, part of the state of South Australia.

Jackson, Saudi prince start own company

• The King of pop and a prince of Saudi Arabia are setting up their own realm. Michael Jackson and Prince Alwaleed Bin Talal Bin Abdulaziz Al Saud said Tuesday in Paris they're forming a venture called Kingdom Entertainment to develop a variety of entertainment activities.

Prosecutors to drop case against rapper

• Prosecutors in Los Angeles said Monday they won't retry rapper Snoop Doggy Dog and his former bodyguard on voluntary manslaughter charges in the shooting death of a gang member. Superior Court Judge Paul Flynn granted the prosecution's request.

Racial motive suspected in fires

Federal investigators suspect some of 17 black church fires in the South were racially motivated, but they have not found a conspiracy linking all the fires, a senior official said Tuesday. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, the FBI and state and local police have been investigating the 17 fires. Except one fire in 1990, the string of fires began in 1993. They occurred in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia. Arrests have been made in three of the fires, including two 1995 fires in South Carolina and one fire last month in Tyler, Ala. Two Ku Klux Klan members are awaiting trial in the South Carolina cases.

Parliament blunts Communist effort

The upper house of Russia's parliament rebuked the Communists in the lower house on Tuesday over its call to reunite the Soviet Union and appealed for reconsideration of the motion. The call has become a subject in the presidential campaign that puts Boris Yeltsin against Communist Party leader Gennady Zyuganov, the front-runner in the June 16 election. Russia's upper house, or Federation Council, warned the Duma that its action could badly damage Russia's relations with its neighbors and asked the Duma to reconsider.

from front page

The only fee which is refundable is the Student to Student Grant Fee. This small, $2.50, fee is augmented by matching state funds to provide a financial resource for students in need.

Student fees are controlled separately from tuition fees. Annual meetings, including Student Government representatives, determine the level of student fees.

"The fees are forecasted over a four year period independently of tuition increases," said Rock.

Without student fees, many of the services students depend on and enjoy at SIUE would be eliminated.

Parking fee increases—just another way for the university to make money

Some of the reasons for raising parking sticker rates seem more than a little preposterous!

To start out with, the article about SIUE having lower parking sticker prices than a lot of other schools. So what! Because the price of gas is over $3.00 a gallon in Europe, does that mean the gas price in the U.S. should increase 300 percent? I certainly do not think so. But that is what that article is saying in essence.

The next thing said is that all this extra money is needed for repairs and upkeep. Really, how did it suddenly get so much more expensive to maintain parking lots and walkways? If it has, publish the cost for the last five years, then publish the reasons for such a LARGE increase using the DOLLAR amounts that have changed.

The last one reason is the money is going to be used for building this, that, and the other thing. Well, "that" is nice, and "this" I'm sure is real good, but why are the parking fees paying for it? Also, if the parking prices do pay for it, does that mean that before too long parking fees will be paying for everything new built at campus? One more thing to ask here—if it is for building something new, will parking prices go back down after these things are finished, or is it just another way for the university to make more money in the long run?

University should sit back and learn from Professor Hudlin

This letter is being written following some disturbing developments on campus. It is written with deep concern over the lot of a dynamic, respected and inspiring member of faculty who finds himself in the unenviable task of fighting for his job. Professor Ed Hudlin is known to most of us as a professor in the department of philosophy. Whether he shall stay as such remains to be seen.

Hudlin is undoubtedly an exemplary philosophy lecturer. He has guided scores of students through challenging philosophy courses. It is amazing how well he relates to students who are having difficulties in their philosophy studies. Hudlin is a selfless lecturer who lends students sizeable portions of his free time. I know this for a fact, I was one of a group of students who worked with Hudlin on a philosophy course that would otherwise have been most frustrating. There is no doubt that Hudlin is well versed in his material.

Hudlin has given a great deal to philosophical studies here at SIUE. He is definitely an outspoken member of faculty and one can't help but wonder whether this new-found predicament has something to do with this. I have benefitted from the vast knowledge of this interesting and lively professor and would hate to think that some incoming student may be denied this opportunity.

Now, Hudlin is currently under paid suspension. Wasted resources?

Definitely.

Here is a teacher who invested a great deal of time and money in acquiring the credentials necessary to become an instructor. All instructors at SIUE definitely remember their seemingly endless "days in the wilderness."

What makes his achievement even more significant is the fact that he overcame the social and academic obstacles of his time. Ask Hudlin about his background then sit back tight and marvel. Ask him about his experiences and sit back and marvel. There is a lot we can learn from Hudlin—let's all sit back and learn.

ID Center should return fees for name change

This letter is in response to a letter to the Alestle editor on March 19, 1996, by Regina Youngblood in which she stated that Jim Stout should check his facts before he draws conclusions.

The following illustrates my experience with the ID Card center at the University Center:

Fact: I had a new ID card made and it cost me $10.00. My card was not lost, stolen or damaged. I turned my card into the ID Card Center because of a name change.

If I have to pay $10.00 to have my name changed on my ID card, you should say so clearly. If you don't say so, you should have to return all the fees you have collected for a name change.

That is a fact!

Contracts are made to be broken—even in the NBA

This letter is in response to David Ellet's comment on Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf. Ellet stated that Abdul-Rauf had an obligation to stand in a dignified manner as his contract had specified and, by following the rules, he would receive an "amount of money that most Americans will not see during their life time."

Ellet must not understand that contracts are made to be broken, especially when one party decides that a contract is in conflict with human reasoning or issues oppression. How did this country break away from England? How was civil rights indoctrinated in this country? How did slaves receive their freedom? How did women receive the right to vote?

All these cases involved persons who went against laws and norms to express human issues that were not popular at the time of their propagation. All these "contracts" were broken. The breaking of contracts or agreements, in some cases, is a sign of evolving from one state to another.

Chris Jackson evolved to Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf. Ideals that he stood for as Chris Jackson no longer apply to Abdul-Rauf. Abdul-Rauf will not "sell-out" his principles for "an amount of money that most Americans will not see during their life time," maybe that is why he is seen as "anti-patriotic," apple pie has become toxic!

On March 14, Abdul-Rauf announced that he would stand for the anthem. Instead of pledging loyalty to the flag, he will pray for the oppressed in this country and the world. Maybe one day America will live up to its creed and constitution, but until then, NO SELL-OUTS!

O ye who believe, stand out firmly for justice, as witnesses to God, even as against yourselves, or your parents, or your kin, and whether it be against the rich or poor ... (qur'an 4:135)

Hakeem Abdul-Rasheed
Jr., MSA Vice-president

editorial

NBA took constitutional right away from Abdul-Rauf

In response to David Ellet's article about my editorial regarding Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf, I just have to say, whatever.

Abdul-Rauf came into the NBA as just a basketball player. Getting a paycheck was not his only objections. He played a game he loved and just so happened to get paid for it. But after he accepted Allah as his God, he learned that there are more precious things in this life and that money is not everything. That is why he contemplated retiring from the NBA at an early age. Do you think that many other Americans would give up all that money for their belief in God?

True, he signed a contract that stipulates that players must stand and line up in a dignified posture," and for many games he did not stand. This had been going on for some time. Why didn't the NBA stop this before all of this publicity? Instead, they went to the Denver Nuggets to try to get them to discipline him. Because he was not harming anyone, they just had him staying in the lockerroom while the anthem was being played. But in some arenas where the lockerrooms were not close to the stadium floor, he would go to the sideline and either stretch or sit and pray. That's where he got into trouble. But why? Just because it's in his contract? To me that's garbage.

If the NBA is so concerned about the national anthem, why is it played at least 20 minutes before game time in some arenas? Why isn't it played right before the tip off and shown on television for all of America to see? If it's so important, why don't all vendors stop selling and all fans be required to stay at their seats and not go wandering around. And, shouldn't all restrooms be shut and locked during this time, after all, if sitting down during the national anthem is disrespectful, then what do you call it when someone is using the restroom during it.

I wish Abdul-Rauf didn't decide to stand up. He lost what every American was born with—the freedom of expression. It's a shame that in this world today that money seems to rule everything. It's a shame that the NBA would take his money away from him, and they really don't have a right to do that. They are not paying him, the Denver Nuggets are paying him.

And here's something else to think about. I bet you that Abdul-Rauf, if given the option to sit and pray during the anthem then play without being paid, he would've. It wasn't just the money the NBA took away from him, it was his chance to do something he loved—play basketball.

turn-out. This year 836 cast a ballot compared to last year where only 537 students visited the voting booth.

The following results are unofficial, they will become official once the Student Senate approves them on March 29.

The battle for President was fought between Randy Hobson, currently Student Senator, and Christopher Nance, president of the Black Student Association.

In the end Nance beat out Hobson by the vote of 492 to 305. The presidential position was highly competitive with the candidates working to the last minute getting their names out to the public.

James Earl Little II was elected vice president with 495 votes, beating out Steve McLean with 280 votes.

This year 14 candidates ran for 12 open senate seats. In the end the following became victorious: Kelley Jones, 541; Nicole Watson, 537; Antonio Stephens, 520; Mark Hunter, 508; Charmayne White, 508; Demetre Pegues, 501; Sheri Williams, 494; Kendra Manning, 479; Robert Mumphard Jr., 452; Lamont Bankston, 433; Heather Rulo, 426; Bill Anderson, 396.

The two candidates who lost the election were Brandon Lorton, 390, and Joe Arana, 347.

Alpha Kappa Alpha to sponsor tax workshop

By Melanie Adams
Assistant News Editor

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Incorporated is sponsoring an income tax workshop March 25, from 4 to 5 p.m. in Building II Rm. 2409.

"The workshop was formed because a lot of people were inquiring on how to do their income taxes and where their money goes after they send it off," La Tongia Hayes, member of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority said.

Hayes also said that one of the sorority's goals is to educate the community on business matters, and that the seminar would provide information to those who are interested in taxes.

Nancy Small, professor of accounting, will be delivering the presentation.

"She will deliver an overview about how to do income taxes and offer information on how to budget after graduation," Hayes added.

The next activity planned by Alpha Kappa Alpha will be a political seminar featuring Kwame Thompson, mayoral candidate for University City, March 28, in the Mississippi/Illinois room in the UC at 7 p.m..

Jake Lafay, a junior in psychology said that he didn't vote simply because he didn't want to.

"I suppose student senate could be important, I haven't really dealt with it," he also said.

Gary Drikow, a senior in Engineering said that he didn't vote because he doesn't really care who's elected since he is graduating soon.

Joann Meadows, also a senior majoring in political science said she didn't vote for student senate elections because she just got off work and doesn't have time to. However, she does feel that student government is an important part of campus.

"I did vote in the Illinois primary yesterday," Meadows added.

Nicole Walker, student poll worker said that the problem with government is that people aren't voting.

"The people that aren't voting are going to come up disappointed when something happens that doesn't benefit them. The senators get blamed for it, but the ones that don't vote shouldn't say anything because they didn't bother to vote for the ones they wanted in the senate," Walker said.

The students who did vote in the government election were concerned with student senate and the people who were running.

Fabian Wright, a junior in management information systems said that student senate is a very viable component to campus.

"Student government is a vehicle in which students' concerns can be voiced and heard," Wright said.

"I voted because I wanted Lamont Bankston to win and I think he is a wonderful student who could contribute a lot of valuable information toward our African-American heritage," Willie Ester Covington, a senior in communications said.

CU student files civil lawsuit over fraternity hazing

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A former University of Colorado student has filed a civil lawsuit against the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity and 22 of its members in connection with a hazing incident last fall.

The lawsuit was filed Friday in Boulder District Court by Michael "Bo" Montoya and his mother, Connie Mather. It alleges crimes ranging from negligence to false imprisonment to assault.

Montoya and his family claim he nearly died on Oct. 24 after fraternity members tied him up and allegedly forced liquor down his throat. Montoya, then 19, was a fraternity pledge seeking full membership into the house.

Attorney Stephen Justino, who is representing Montoya and Mather, said his clients hope to recover damages from the fraternity.

"We think the conduct was outrageous," Justino said.

Montoya and Mather are seeking unspecified damages.

The lawsuit claims Montoya was deprived of medicine he was required to take daily and that members blocked a doorway when Mather showed up and tried to take her son home.

Mather claims her son suffers from an adrenaline deficiency that can be fatal if he loses consciousness. She said she and her husband dragged their son out of the fraternity and back to his dorm room, where they had to force medicine down him to save his life.

Named in the complaint is the national Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, its CU chapter and house corporation, and 22 of its members.

The local chapter of the fraternity has not commented on the suit.

But throughout a police investigation, fraternity members denied the allegations made by Montoya and his mother.

Two fraternity members and the fraternity's president on Feb. 29 on behalf of the organization pleaded no contest to misdemeanor charges of providing alcohol to a minor. A judge gave the two members six-month deferred sentences with 24 hours of community service.

The judge also ordered the house's members to perform a total of 200 hours of community service.

Police Beat

Motor Vehicle Theft

On March 8, at 9:18 p.m., a student reported someone stole his 1984 Oldsmobile Cutlass four-door out of Lot "A" Centra. The vehicle was locked and the student had the keys with him. Police are continuing their investigation.

On March 11, at noon, a student reported his car had been stolen from Lot 7. He had locked the car and had the keys with him. The car was later recovered, but the Sony Tape/CD player and one license plate were missing. The trunk lock was also damaged. Police are continuing their investigation.

Theft From Motor Vehicle

On March 11, at 1:42 p.m., a student reported someone broke into his car while it was parked in Lot 7. He locked his car when he parked it and when he returned the door was standing half way open and a Sony radio/tape player, a Sony CD player and 20 CD's were missing. The stolen items are valued at $550. Police are continuing their investigation.

Theft Under

On March 10, a student from the Residence Hall reported someone stole a Sega cartridge from his room over break week. The cartridge is valued at $60.00. There are no suspects or witnesses.

On March 12, at 5:09 p.m., a student reported she had rented a locker at the V.C. and locked it. When she returned to the locker the next day, she found the lock gone and her clothes also missing. There are no suspects or witnesses.

Go ahead and rock the Cradle of Thorns

By Lenon Maguire
Lifestyle Reporter

In my review of the 13mg show about a month ago, I mentioned a band named Cradle of Thorns that really stole the show. I now have the new COT album, Download This, in my little, sweaty, rock critic hands. And I like it.

When I encountered COT at the Galaxy, I had no idea who they were and didn't know anything about their sound. The band started playing, and by the end of their set I was impressed by their energy, power, and showmanship. Off stage, they were very polite and willing to talk with the crowd and "hang out." I like that in a band.

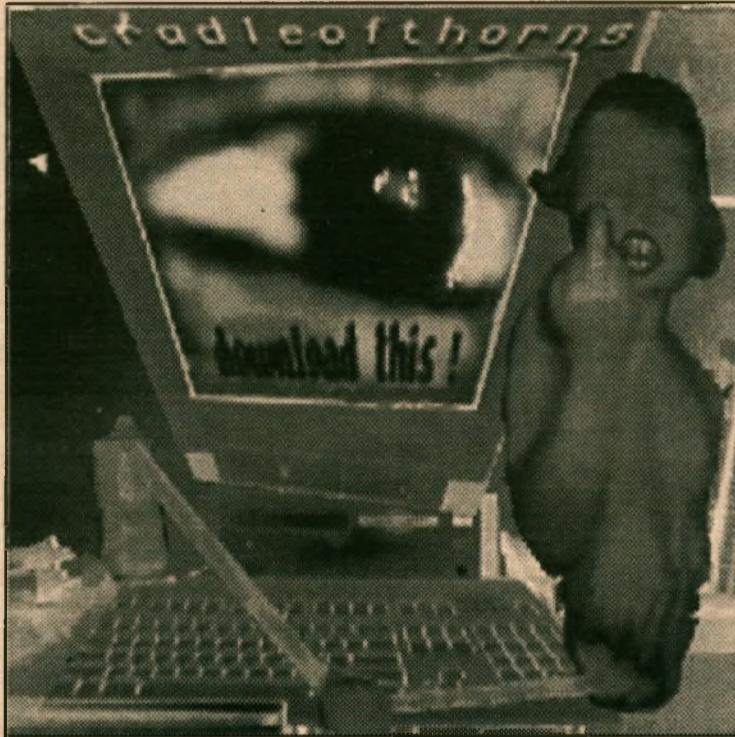

A sticker on the album packaging calls out to fans of Rage Against the Machine, 311, and Korn. COT is similar to these other bands, but also true to themselves. Listeners will appreciate the fact that COT has their own sound as well. They are not as choppy as Rage, not as ska as 311, and not quite as hardcore as Korn.

The album clocks in at just over an hour with 18 tracks, as lead singer Ty Elam rap/sings through pounding beats and crunching guitars as the band delivers its messages dealing with topics of racism, TV evangelists, and developing technology. The band takes a strong stance on a wide range of political and moral topics.

In the song, "Subtract," COT talks about guns and domestic violence. "There's a man and a woman and a gun/ Fair is the fight minus one/ one can think clearly and one has the strength/ one fights fairly and one has his way." The band doesn't sit back on this topic or any of the others that it tackles. Ty gets in your face and delivers his opinions openly and honestly.

The song, "Picture Perfect," talks about utopia, a world without prejudice. In concert, the band introduced it as an anti-racism song. The main line of the chorus is, "Welcome to the place/ where the color of your face/ isn't even noticed."

To prove the band has a sense of humor also, they do an amusing cover of "Shout at the Devil" by Motley Crue. In concert, Ty was wearing an "I Love Sunday School" T-shirt on stage. Classic.

I was very pleased that the band sounded good on the album as well as in concert. COT has a dark, moody sound which is intensified by the heavy, serious subject matter. A fan of the bands listed in the third paragraph will enjoy this CD. Just about anybody will get a kick out of their Motley Crue impersonation.

Local Music News

Sometimes it's not so bad when a band breaks up. Uncle Tupelo split, and now we have Wilco and Son Volt to listen to.

Not too long ago the local band Agatha Honey called it quits. Now, in the aftermath, two great bands, Vegabasin and the Geisha Men, have emerged to help ease our pain.

I caught both bands playing at the Stagger Inn on Friday night, and it was definitely worth the price of admission. They were opening up for Alton's hardcore workhorses Back of Dave, who, by the way, should make a jump to the next level very soon. They've paid their dues!

Fans of the now defunct Sunny Day Real Estate owe it to themselves to check out both Vegabasin and the Geisha Men. The Vegabasin sound is more reminiscent of lighter Sunny Day, which is a very good thing. The songs seem to weave back and forth, almost entrancing you as you sit back and enjoy the ride. A band like this will be good to have in our local scene.

The Geisha Men seem to combine the sounds of Sunny Day with the angst and energy of the Champaign, IL bands such as the Poster Children, Hum, and Menthol. The result is a heavy combination power, feedback, and fuzz that really hits hard. The two groups complimented each other very well. That, along with Back of Dave, made it a great night of music for only $3.

Both of these post-Agatha Honey bands are loaded with talent and potential that, hopefully, won't go unnoticed for long. If there is any justice in this world, extremely mediocre local bands, like Stir, will stop signing major record contracts so talented, deserving bands such as Vegabasin and the Geisha Men can.

Look for both bands playing local clubs because they truly put on quite a show. Hopefully they will stay together for a long time to come, because there are many bands that have made it with a lot less talent.

Final Coffee Concert of the 95-96 Season Set For March 25

(UNS)

The final performance of the 1995-96 Concerts Chamber Music Series season is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 25, in the University Center of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

To be performed in the UC's Meridian Hall, the Coffee Concert will feature faculty from the SIUE department of music.

The evening's program includes: Trio for Clarinet, Cello, and Piano, Op. 11 by Beethoven, featuring clarinetist James Hinson, a member of the SIUE adjunct music faculty, cellist Joseph Pival, an SIUE music professor, and pianist Linda Perry, also an SIUE music professor; Six German Songs for Clarinet, Tenor, and Piano, Op. 103 by Spohr, featuring Professor Hinson, tenor Ronald Abraham, chair of the SIUE department of music, and Professor Perry; Songs for Soprano and Piano by Strauss, featuring soprano Sarah Turner, an SIUE professor of music, and Professor Perry; and Four Pieces for Clarinet, Viola, and Piano, Op. 83 by Bruch, featuring Professor Hinson and his wife, violist Christine Hinson who is also a member of the adjunct music faculty, and Professor Perry.

The Coffee Concerts series is cosponsored by the SIUE department of music, SIUE Friends of Music, a support organization for the department, and SIUE's University Center.

Admission includes convenient free parking in the visitors' lot behind the University Center plus a dessert and beverage served during intermission. Tickets are $7; senior citizens, $6; and students, $5, and are available at the SIUE Fine Arts Box Office, (618) 692-2774, or, from St. Louis toll-free, (314) 621-5168, Ext. 2774.

Surprise, surprise, surprise
By Darryl Howlett

The sun is shining, the birds are singing, and the temperature feels oh so good. Too bad this weather is not in St. Louis.

It doesn't surprise me at all that on the first day of spring it snows in St. Louis. What a wacky and crazy city we have.

Why, I woke up this morning thinking, "Yeah, the sun will be shining and I can wear a light jacket today or none at all." To my surprise, all I saw was a white glow surrounding my neighborhood. All I could say was, "Where in the hell did this snow come from!?" (Apologies to my momma for the profanity).

For some reason, even during my childhood, I always associated the month of March with Charlie Brown getting his kite entangled in the trees. Or maybe storms rising up unnoticed and raining like cats and dogs.

The thing about the weather going back and forth, is everyone around you catches such nasty (pronounced "nah stee" in proper English) colds. March is the month that the only sound coming from classrooms are the sounds of sniffing, sneezing, coughing, snuffy head, fever, so you can rest medicine ... uh, I mean, it is a terrible month for colds.

And just when you thought it was safe to stop wearing your LCD's (Long Cotton Drawers) old man winter comes along to reminds you exactly who is in charge. The ladies on campus are probably upset because they wanted to finally wear their new spring wardrobes. Think about it; it's torture to look at a JCPenney's Spring and Summer Catalog with snow on the ground.

However, despite this little setback to spring, be advised that spring and summer are just around the corner. So, for all of those students out there who pigged out this winter (myself included) the hiding will be over. For the men, this might be a good time to put lotion on your legs again. I know that there are some out there who don't do this task all winter long.

In closing, Ed Butts, a speech communications major here on campus, left a poem about his feelings on it snowing on the first day of spring.

*"Spring is sprung,
Winter's done,
What I want to know,
Is who flung dung,
And called it snow!"*

Have a nice weekend, and remember to dress warmly.

Hearing the call—

Story by Darryl Howlett

Lifestyle Editor

You read it in the news. You can see them on television commercials. The message is everywhere. The call is out for volunteers. To heed to that call is a quest and dedication within itself. Two SIUE students volunteer twice a week to tutor kindergarten through sixth grade students.

Portia Goree and LaShonda Sanders tutor at the Grace United Methodist Church, located at 6011 Forest Blvd. in Washington Park, Ill. The program was started in the fall of 1995 as a way to get kids off the streets and, in the process, provide tutoring, leadership and role models to kids.

Goree, a 23-year-old senior majoring in TVR from Washington Park explains how she became involved in the volunteer project.

"Initially, it was a project for my TVR 452 class to videotape a community organization. We were shooting a film asking tutors why they volunteer their services," Goree said. "I enjoy the one on one tutoring. To me, it's very rewarding. I see that a lot of black kids are so behind in education. I thought maybe I could help in some way."

Soon Goree became so involved that she decided to take the time to become a tutor herself. But she didn't stop there. She took it upon herself to grab as many friends as possible—and that is how Sanders, 20, became involved.

"Besides the fun I had when I lived in East St. Louis, I wished I had a program that could help me. Plus it beats them (kids) being on the street," Sanders, whose major is psychology, said.

On any particular Tuesday or Thursday at 4:30 p.m., the sounds that you will hear in the basement of Grace United is ink pens writing, paper shuffling, and pencils sharpening.

"Have a seat! No hopping around!" barks one of the tutors.

One of the boys, Rondall Doby, jumps and heeds to the command.

Soon the homework session has started. Today, mathematics takes precedence as Goree questions one student.

"What's seven divided by zero?" Goree asked.

A little girl, Arteenet Cain, 10, looks up in puzzlement. Goree tried again.

"What's any number divided by zero?" Goree asked again.

Arteenet looks up at the ceiling, thinks awhile and while laughing, slowly, calmly breathes out, "Zero."

On the other side of the room, one of the tutors and coordinators, Jim Burges of East Alton, tells of his appreciation for Portia and Lashonda.

tutoring with love

"When they came down, they were responding to a year and a half of a documentary. In 1995, I realized that a 67-year-old white, Anglo-Saxon, Protestant male could not be a role model to these young girls in Washington Park," Burges said. "These kids love her (Portia), she's done her job for the communications department and she continues to tutor the kids in love," Burges said.

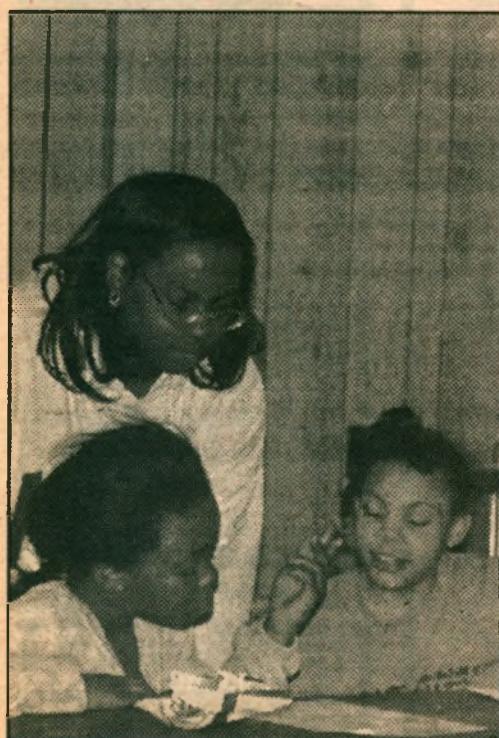

"We needed help and Portia got LaShonda. And LaShonda is doing the same thing as a sophomore that Portia is now doing as a senior," Burges said.

Burges went on to say that Goree and Sanders have brought the tutoring program to life. Burges hope that the program can expand next fall to four or five days a week.

Back on the other side Arteenet seems to have a hard time solving a problem. Goree looks up and replies.

"She gets frustrated a lot and doesn't want to do the work."

While Goree is saying this, Arteenet has her head buried in her arms, obviously embarrassed by the whole incident. After a little coaching from Portia, she starts to write again. With moments such as that one, Goree feels an obligation to the kids she works with.

"I do this because I wouldn't want to let them down. It could have been easier for me to stop coming when I first started the project, but I couldn't do that," Goree said.

And how do the kids feel about the role that Portia and LaShonda play in their lives? When Stephen Walker, 12, of East St. Louis was asked this question, he looked up, smiled, and said.

"Portia and LaShonda?" he pauses.

Arteenet interrupts his thoughts and yells, "Do you like them?"

"It's alright...okay working with them, and Portia is like a punching bag," as Walker gets up and runs away from Portia.

All the children are determined at the end of the semester to come to Portia's graduation this May as one of the ways of saying thank you. Sanders will also be in attendance at Goree's graduation.

"Most definitely. I'll be there saying, 'Go Portia, Go Portia,'" Sanders said. Also, in a couple of weeks a ceremony will be held to honor Portia for her time and dedication with the kids.

By 5:30, after much guidance and friendship, parents and grandparents arrive to pick up the kids. Every child makes a point to hug Goree and Sanders to the point of almost tackling them on the blue-gray carpet floor. And on that certain day they succeed in knocking down Portia.

Sanders, after a long all fulfilling day, sums up the feelings of the responsibility of working with the kids.

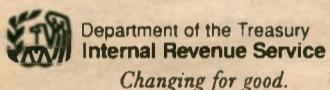

"When they see Portia and myself, they can say, 'Hey maybe I can go to college, maybe I can be like them, maybe I can succeed,'" Sanders said.

Goree and Sanders always look forward to the hugs they receive from the kids.

Cougars back in action with six games in three days

Melissa Wathen/Alestle

The Cougar baseball team will be getting down and dirty in the Great Lakes Valley Conference with three doubleheaders this weekend.

Tennis gets off on the wrong foot

By Todd Spann
Assistant Sports Editor

The spring season started out on the wrong foot for SIUE tennis as both the men and the women fell twice on the road against Washburn University and Northwest Missouri State.

Ethan Halberg and Jason Gemin were the only Cougars on the men side to gain victories as they split two matches over the weekend in Topeka, Kan.

In Halberg's first match against Washburn University he played the 26th best player in the nation, Jesse Sherer and lost a tough three set match 7-6(7-4), 4-6, 7-5.

"Ethan played a good match," Head Coach Bill Logan said. "But he just lost to a good player. Jason also had a close match plus Nate (Reede) went to three matches and played a close match too."

The next match was against Northwest Missouri State which the Cougars fell by a score of 5-2, but got a good performance by

see TENNIS, next page

By Eli Savoie

After having the inclement weather stall the season temporarily, the SIUE baseball team faces the unenviable task of playing six games in three days this weekend when a trio of Great Lakes Valley Conference foes come to town.

On Friday, the Cougars will host Lewis at a location that at this time is unknown. Following Lewis into town will be Northern Kentucky on Saturday and Indianapolis on Sunday. Those two doubleheaders will be played in Collinsville at Woodland Park.

The No. 7 ranked Cougars, 11-4 overall and 1-1 in the GLVC, are looking forward to returning to action and are hoping the weather will cooperate.

"Hopefully the weather will break," head coach Gary Collins said Wednesday afternoon while he searched for a field to play the Friday games on. "Everyone wants to play again."

While playing six games in three days seems tough, Collins said he thought his team could handle it. He said they have enough pitching to carry them through without wearing out any arms.

With their home field not in playing condition yet, Collins said the team has had some problems getting the proper preparations for games.

"None of our infielders has been able to field a ground ball, except when we were down south," Collins said. He added that the lack of practice has led to some defensive troubles during games.

Although he is concerned about his team's defensive performance so far, he thinks some recent changes will help the team in the long run.

Other than the defensive performance of the team, Collins seems to be pretty pleased with where his team stands.

He said the pitching has been everything he expected and he is really happy with the way they've thrown the ball.

On offense, Collins realizes that the team's overall batting average (.310) isn't as high as it could be, but he is pleased with the timely hits the guys have been getting.

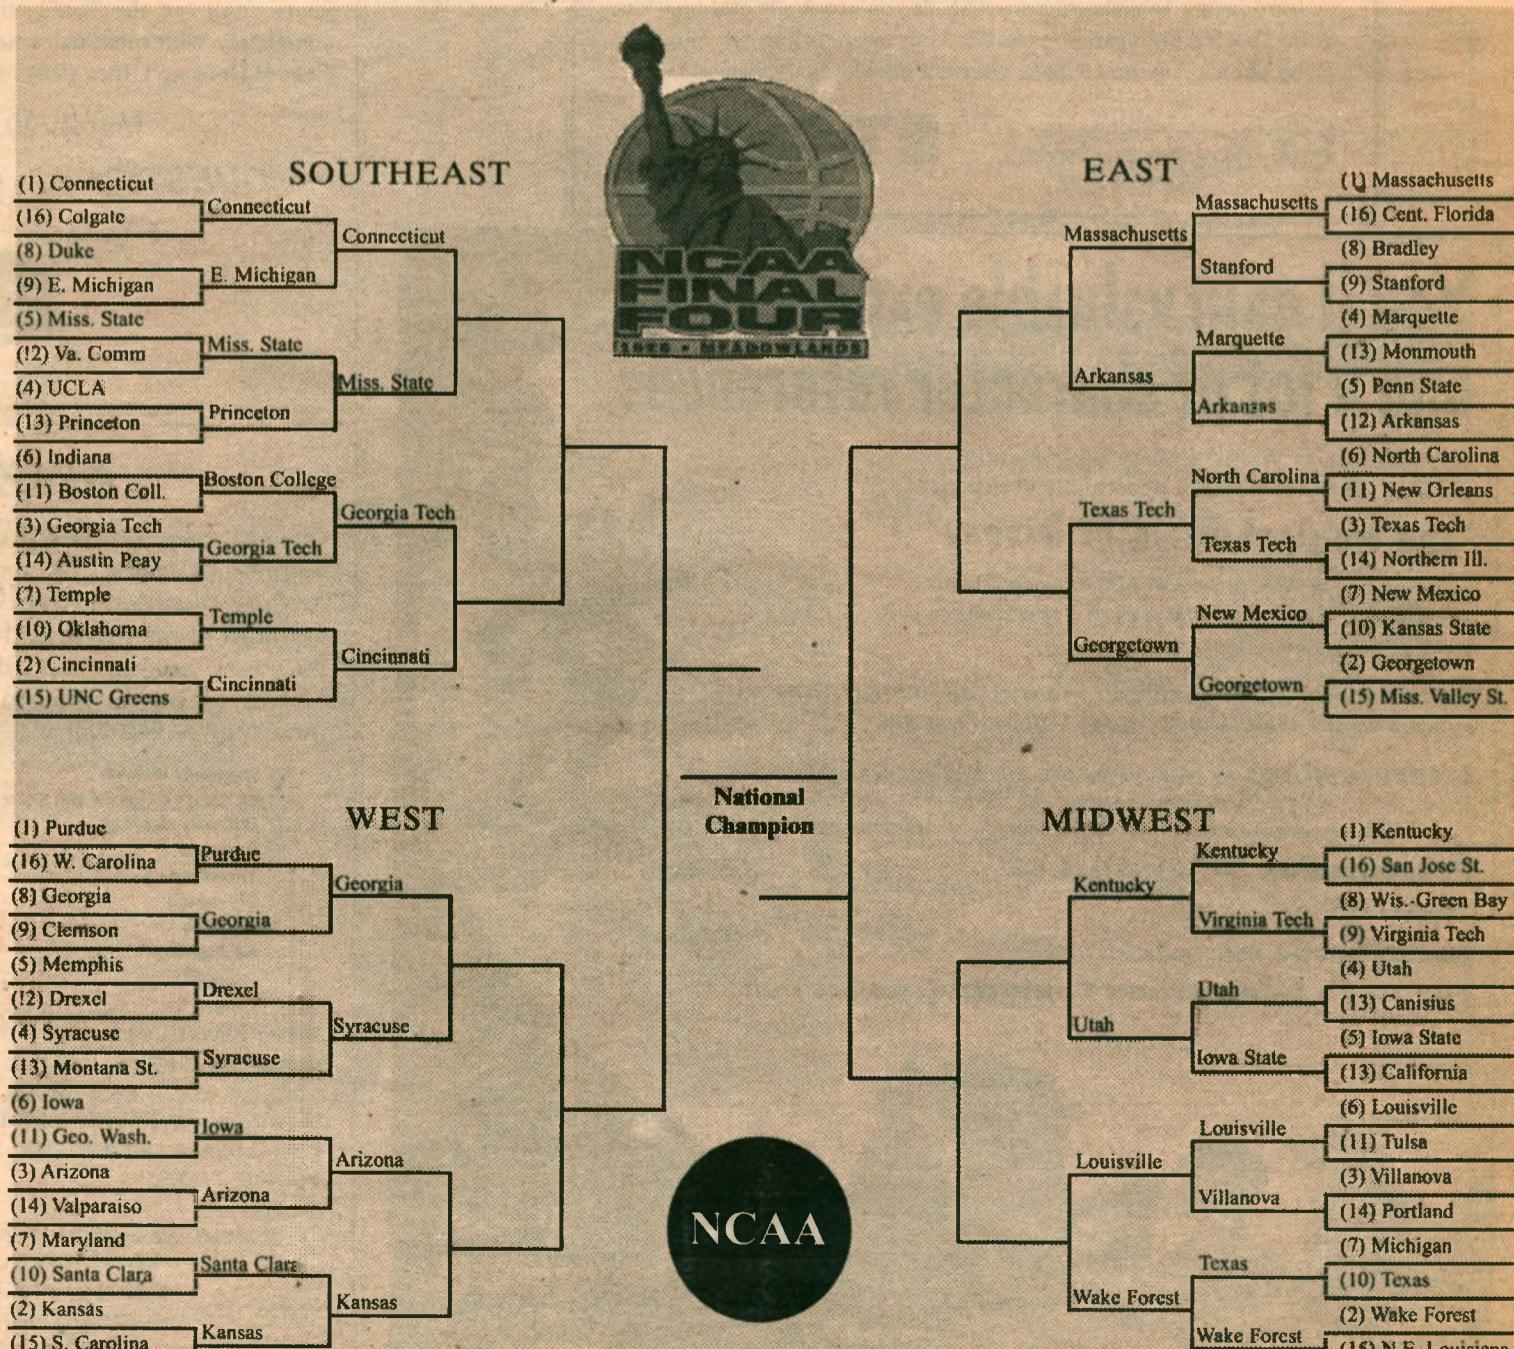

"We've done a pretty good job of hitting when we needed to, but we're still not satisfied," he said.

The Cougars' offense has been led by second-baseman Brian Geluck with a .442 average and third-baseman Jeff Silvey, who is hitting .420.

Collins said that while these two have been hitting the ball well, some other guys are starting to hit the ball better and he thinks that they will all be hitting much better in the near future.

With the weather causing some problems, it's hard for the team to develop any kind of consistency.

Collins said that when the team does start clicking together, they can be very good.

Tennis

Halberg in another three set thriller. He won 6-1, (4-6), 6-4.

Gemm won by a forfeit after the guy he was playing stormed off the court when he lost the first set tie breaker 8-6.

The Cougars this year have the top three positions filled with tough experience players and then round out the bottom three with young inexperienced talent. So they will have to play good tennis in order to survive the tough schedule they usually have.

"We had a team meeting after the trip from Kansas and we decided we needed to practice harder, which consist of more wind sprints and things like that. Plus we are going to try to make a run at the conference title. And if anything positive came out of this past weekend then it was that," Logan said.

The Cougars believe that with a couple more matches under their belts, they could of had a better weekend. Their first matches were against teams who have already had experience this season.

"It was a tough way to start off the season, but seeing the enthusiasm at the late practice last night (8:30-10:30) things look like they are ready to change," Reede said.

Reede added, "Personally it's been tough so far. I played when I was a freshman and sophomore so I have a lot of experience, but to take three years off like I did and then come back it takes a little while to get back in condition."

The Cougars are know getting ready for some conference matches. They need to make these count if they want to make that run at the title.

"We have a bunch of conference matches coming up so we are going to have to start working hard and I believe we found that out over the weekend," Logan said.

The men weren't the only SIUE players to have a tough time in Kansas. The women, coming off an 11-0 spring dropped two straight to start off their season.

"We played two powerhouse teams. Northwest is ranked 18th in the nation and Washburn would probably be in the top 25 if they ranked teams that high. But they are ranked 7th in the midwest region while Northwest is 5th," Logan said.

Northwest Missouri State blanked the Cougars 7-0 and then Washburn beat them 5-2. The Cougars did get good victories from Kellie Kane and Layla Rosenfeld in the loses.

Kellie played great tennis at No. 3. She played dorm good points and I am really proud off her. And Layla won her match at No. 6 with good smart tennis. She showed a good example of a good way to win," Logan said.

Softball set to host GLVC clusters this weekend at Collinsville Sports Complex

By SIUE Sports Information

The Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville softball team will get its first opportunity to host a Great Lakes Valley Conference tournament this weekend.

Sort of.

Due to inclement weather at the other GLVC schools, SIUE will host both conference clusters at the Collinsville Sports Complex Saturday and Sunday.

The Cougars, now 10-5 on the year, were supposed to spend the weekend in Owensboro, Ky., for a league cluster with Kentucky Wesleyan, Lewis, Northern Kentucky, St. Joseph's and Quincy. Bellarmine was supposed to host the other cluster with Indianapolis, IUPU-Fort Wayne, Southern Indiana and Wisconsin-Parkside in Louisville, Ky.

Head Coach Sandy Montgomery said SIUE was glad to be in a position to help out the conference in this capacity.

"I'm elated we could be there for the conference, and I'm excited to have all the (conference) schools at one place because it seldom happens," Montgomery said. "A special thanks goes out to the city of Collinsville and its recreation district for allowing us to do this at such short notice."

On Saturday, SIUE faces Northern Kentucky at 11 a.m., Lewis at 1 p.m. and Northern Kentucky at 3 p.m. On Sunday, the Cougars take on Kentucky Wesleyan at 9 a.m., Lewis at 1 p.m. and Kentucky Wesleyan at 3 p.m.

This weekend is the first-ever conference action for the Cougars. Last week at the Collinsville Sports Complex, SIUE went 4-1 in its own Cougar Classic.

SIUE canceled its Thursday doubleheader with IUPU-Indianapolis due to the weather. The games have been rescheduled for April 3rd.

National Health & Wellness Week-March 18-22

Thursday 21 T.V. Tune-out Day

This is a wellness challenge for all of us who watch more than 7 hours of television a week. Give your eyes a break today. Do some homework, socialize, exercise, read a fiction book, or attend any of the many presentations and special programs available on campus every week. Find out how brave you are, turn off your t.v. today!

Nutrition Survival Workshop 5:00 PM - 6:00 PM (Wellness Lab, Student Fitness Center)

Have trouble eating right on a tight budget and little time? Find out how to hurdle this obstacle by joining us this evening. Come prepared to "cook", eat, and learn!

Friday 22 Random Acts of Kindness Day @ SIUE

On this day, make an extra effort to do something kind for another person that you would not normally do. This may be as simple as opening a door for someone, doing the dishes when it isn't your turn, or handing over the t.v. remote to your fellow couch potato. Watch how one act of kindness can lighten up the day for the recipient!

Take A Walk On The Wild Side 12:30 PM - 1:30 PM

What's green and brown and has walking trails all over the place? The Sweet Williams Trail! Take a hike with Ann Schonlau into the forested hills of campus. Find out where the trails take you and learn about the foliage that shades you as you exercise. Meet at the University Center, downstairs in the lobby in front of the Cougar Den (next to the food!). Rain/snow/tornado location will be at the Student Fitness Center indoor "trail".

These events are brought to you by the University Wellness Program

BACCHUS

THE FUN BEGINS WITH JOINING!

Just by joining you are registered to win a $5 prize. Simply pick up a National Alcohol Awareness Month button TODAY at the Health and Wellness Fair in the UC.
