Rohypnol, “the date rape drug” pushed to public fore front

■ BY DOREEN VAN
LEE
NEWS STRINGER

Not just topics confined to daytime talk shows anymore, two illegal and potentially life threatening substances deemed since 1990 as “date rape drugs” have surfaced in the United States.

Rohypnol (flunitrazepam) and GHB (gammahydroxybutyrate), being discussed at great length on high school and college campus, are the center of a statewide alert by Ill. Attorney General Jim Ryan. On Monday in Springfield nearly 300 university representatives, counselors and law enforcement officers attended a summit in which they received information on “date rape” drugs and suggestions for curtailing their use on campuses and various other places young adults frequent.

Rohypnol, which has been nicknamed roofies, roach, the forget pill or rope in certain parts of the country, is manufactured in Switzerland and is legal in 64 countries. Rohypnol’s intended use is to treat sleeping disorders. Rohypnol tablets are round, white and slightly smaller than aspirin and is usually distributed in a bubble foil packet. Rohypnol is colorless, odorless and tasteless which makes it undetectable when dissolved in beverages. Rohypnol’s affects begin to take place within 30 minutes of ingestion and may persist for eight hours or more depending on the dosage. Misuse of Rohypnol may affect the central nervous system. It impairs judgment and motor skills, slurs speech, produces drowsiness, dizziness, confusion and amnesia. Rohypnol is potentially dangerous if mixed with alcoholic beverages.

GHB is referred to as “home brew” and is made in street labs. As with Rohypnol, it becomes increasingly dangerous if mixed with alcohol. GHB is also colorless, odorless and tasteless. GHB can cause dizziness, nausea, vomiting, confusion, seizures, severe respiratory difficulties, unconsciousness and coma.

Volunteer fair offers opportunities in community service for public

■ BY ZHANDA
JOHNSON
NEWS EDITOR

There is only one place where a person can find community service work and an outfit of clothing at the same time. This place is the Southwestern Illinois Volunteer Fair.

The first Southwestern Volunteer Fair for the many non-profit organizations will take place Saturday, at St. Clair Square in Fairview Heights, Ill. from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The fair was organized by metro east volunteer agencies and St. Clair Square. It is also a collaborative effort by SIUE, Belleville Area College, Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Southwestern Illinois, AmeriCorps programs and other area volunteer agencies.

The fair is designed to benefit volunteers by providing an opportunity for them to get acquainted with many organizations. These organizations will display pamphlets, brochures and other informational items. No solicitation of monies will be allowed. Approximately 20,000 people are expected to attend.

Suzanne Kutterer-Siburt, assistant director, Kimmel Leadership Center said that she is looking forward to everyone’s participation.

Booths will be placed throughout the entire mall. Some organizations participating include United Way of Greater St. Louis, several Hospices, Helena Hatch special Care Center, YWCA of Belleville, Bethany Place, Sexual Assault Victims First, St. Clair County Homeless Action Council, The President's problems spark lively class discussions on presidential ethics

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - President Clinton's links to former White House intern Monica Lewinsky are making for some interesting discussions in civics classes in Kentucky's high schools and colleges.

Dealing with the more salacious details of the controversy is a trickier task for high school teachers.

“I, like the president, choose my words very carefully,” said

Raymond Webb, a Frankfort High School political science teacher.

Webb spent one class last week answering questions about Clinton. “I just try to focus on the impeachable offenses.”

Senior Kim Aniton said “it’s interesting to see how they judge the president on his personal life.”

At Franklin County High School, civics teacher Sonya

Gardner used her planning period pulling the latest Clinton articles off the Internet, including a large picture of Lewinsky.

“They’re very interested,” she said of her students. “But we’re trying to focus on the character and role of the presidency.”

For University of Kentucky students studying the presidency and the media, the allegations against Clinton provide excellent discussion topics.

“Last week, we were talking about the dynamics of the presidency. Who would have known that President Clinton would be able to change them faster than anyone could imagine?” said Professor Donald Gross.

The effects the alleged scandal would have on the presidency – Clinton’s in particular and those in the future – dominated his American Presidency and Federal Executive class for its one hour and 15 minutes.

“As immoral as it is that (Clinton) had an affair, the real legal issues are whether he obstructed justice, and that tends to get blurred when people talk about this,” said Thomas Harper, 23, of Cadiz.

Elderly couple locked in closet by robbers, lives threatened

Wash. (AP) – Two robbers burst through the front door of a home and robbed an elderly couple of $200 at knifepoint before locking them in a closet, the Clallam County sheriff's office said Tuesday.

The robbers threatened to cut the couple's throats if they didn't cooperate, deputies said.

Some students were less concerned about the morality of the president's alleged acts than about the effect on his ability to govern. Some said Americans had already accepted Clinton's sexual escapades.

"But I think it boils down to trust," said Rob Herbst, 21 of Des Plaines, Ill.

"I mean, if all the allegations prove to be true, it makes you wonder how stupid can you be."

Scott County High School teacher Jay Asher was discussing women in politics when the news broke.

Deputies searched for two men, one described as heavyset with chubby cheeks in his 30s and the other in his 20s, after an 84-year-old man and his wife, 79, broke out of the closet and called 911 Monday night.

"We don't have these kind of robberies," Sheriff Joe Hawe said. "This is the first forced residential robbery we've had in years."

One of the robbers forced the wife onto the floor and held her at knifepoint, while the other robber took the husband through the house to collect money, sheriff's officers said.

use of unnamed sources was not only a problem for accuracy and the public but for the media as well," he said, adding that some students called the coverage a feeding frenzy.

Ryan took a straw poll, asking his students how the story would end.

"About 60 of the 85 said they believed it would disappear into nothingness when all was said and done," Ryan said.

"And not a single one said they thought the president would be impeached."

Lawsuit filed against school over student's tongue jewelry

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The father of a 15-year-old student who was suspended after wearing tongue jewelry to school filed a federal lawsuit against the school board Tuesday.

The lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court by Michael Dyer Sr. against the Tecumseh Local Board of Education in New Carlisle.

The lawsuit said Michael Dyer Jr., a ninth-grade student at Tecumseh High School, has been suspended from school four separate times totaling 25 days for failing to obey a school administrator's order.

Dyer refused to open his mouth or to remove the jewelry pierced to his tongue, the lawsuit said.

"Michael Dyer dresses in a particular manner, incorporating body pierces, tattoos and unique hair styles, in order to express his adherence to a 'straightedge' philosophy against the use of legal and illegal drugs and against promiscuous sexual activity and in favor of original and creative thought," the lawsuit says.

According to the lawsuit, Dyer was suspended three times even though the school had no rule against body jewelry. By the fourth time, the school had such a rule, but it was approved by the school board without allowing the standard four-week comment period, the lawsuit said.

A call to the school board was met with no answer. There was no telephone listing for school Superintendent Roger Pankake. Messages left for Tecumseh High School principal Michael Ostendorf were not immediately returned.

According to the lawsuit, Dyers' constitutional rights to free expression and to be free from unreasonable searches were violated. The lawsuit asks for unspecified damages against the school board.

The Alestle is looking for individuals to deliver the newspaper on and off campus.

There has been one confirmed case of rape with the use of Rohypnol on the Southern Illinois University at Carbondale campus and four suspected cases. To date, there have been no reported cases on the SIUE campus.

Suggestions for protecting against these date rape drugs are: not to accept prepared drinks from strangers when at bars;

never leave a drink unattended if possible, and if it is left unattended dispose of it and order a new drink; and also keep a hand on top of your drink when at a bar.

What's In Your Room?

The first in a series of the quasi-home invasion of Woodland Hall

Sandy Schlosser/Alesle

The Woodland Hall room of Melissa Woolever and Amy Wilson is covered with wacky posters, beanbags and a giant letter "E."

■ BY SANDY SCHLOSSER

LIFESTYLE STRINGER

Two beds, two desks and a closet can describe every room in Woodland Hall. What makes a room a home?

Every individual has some type of unique thing about him or her. These individuals, when looked at as a whole, make up SIUE's Woodland Hall.

This is the first submission of the "What's in your Room?" contest. Periodically, the Alesle will publish a picture of a room to show the true uniqueness of the individuals on campus.

Nintendo, stuffed animals, Mickey Mouse, Mountain Dew cans, yearbooks, a poster of Barbie throughout the years, glow in the dark ghosts with hanging candy canes and more make Room 3-North a home.

This room is the temporary home of Melissa Woolever and Amy Wilson. With a blue beanbag chair and a back rocker, Woolever and Wilson can watch television comfortably. "I like how comfortable I can be while doing homework," stated Woolever. Roommate Wilson added, "My beanbag chair makes it feel more like home." This response was quite predictable. When asked why she had to have her beanbag chair here, Wilson replied, "I have a moveable bed. I just drag my chair into another room and get comfortable."

Decorating the walls of one's room adds a lot to the atmosphere of the room. When one walks into this room, colorful streamers tend to be the first thing to attract the eye. Posters such as: 101 Dalmatians, the group DC Talk, "Romeo and Juliet," Growing Up Barbie, John Michael Montgomery, Psychochihuahua and Mickey Mouse are only some of the wall decorations. Personal photos, artwork and the letter "E" also help cover up the four white walls.

Wait a minute! Why would there be a big letter E on someone's wall? "It reminds me of my boyfriend," Amy Wilson replied. It is a very unique decoration, and it has a memorable meaning for the girl that resides in the room.

As a part of the contest, one mystery question is asked after all contest qualifications have been met. The following was the mystery question for contestants number one: "What CD is in your CD player right now?" Melissa Woolever simply stated, "Scream." This also happens to be a favorite movie of hers. Amy Wilson answered, "Wow!" a CD of the best 1996 Christian music, hence the Christian posters on her wall.

If you live in Woodland Hall and would like your room featured in "What's In Your Room?", contact Sandy Schlosser or Corey Stulce at the Alesle at 3528.

Ringworm: the 'grungy fungi' can be prevented

■ BY STEPHEN WHITE
LIFESTYLE REPORTER

You've just finished taking a hot shower at the gym. You grab your towel and quickly scrub every nook and cranny of your body. Suddenly you notice that your feet are swelling and they itch like crazy.

You curse yourself for not having worn sandals at a public shower stall and put on your Jockey shorts. Thoroughly grossed out, you decide to head home where you can scratch your feet in private.

But the worst is yet to come because the next time you change your underwear you find that the red, inflamed itchy spots aren't just between your toenails and the soles of your feet, but have spread to your groin.

You have jock itch.

Does this sound familiar? If it does, you're not alone in your misery. Anyone can get athlete's foot or jock itch. But how exactly does the infamous "grungy fungi" wreak its havoc on the human body?

According to the Merck medical manual, athlete's foot and jock itch are superficial fungal infections caused by dermatophytes — fungi that invade only dead tissues of the skin, hair and nails. Both athlete's foot and jock itch are two of the more common types of skin infection known as ringworm.

Ringworm can exist on just about any other area of the body as well, including the scalp and nails. Since there are so many species of fungi that cause the disease, immunity is impossible. Therefore, knowing the symptoms is of key importance.

In ringworm of the foot, symptoms include scaling and cracking of the skin, especially between the toes. Ringworm of the body appears as flat, spreading ring-shaped areas. The edge is reddish and may be either dry and scaly or moist and crusted.

Ringworm of the scalp can cause temporary baldness, leaving scaly patches. Infected hairs become brittle and break off easily. In severe ringworm cases, infected nails become thicker, discolored and brittle, or they can become chalky and disintegrate.

The key to stopping ringworm is prevention. Never share towels, hats or clothing with an infected individual and always practice good hygiene. Use a powerful, anti-bacterial soap and pay special attention to washing your feet. Dermatophytes can live indefinitely in almost any environment, but they breed more readily in warmer environments where there is greater moisture.

The good news is that most cases of ringworm can be successfully treated with over-the-counter remedies. The bad news is that science has yet to invent a cure. So prevention and early detection are a must. By the time you realize you have ringworm, you may have been infected for the past 10 to 14 days or longer.

Every semester, Health Services treats several SIUE students for ringworm. Many, but not all of these cases, could be prevented or curtailed by good hygiene and an awareness of the people or inanimate objects that harbor dermatophytes.

In the war against "grungy fungi," the best weapons to use against dreaded ringworm are knowledge and prevention.

SIUE adds first women's golf team to roster

■ BY SARAH FINLEY
SPORTS EDITOR

SIUE will be adding its 15th intercollegiate sport to their roster effective fall of 1998. The first-ever women's golf team will be adding their name to the history books.

"A new women's golf program will further increase the athletic opportunities available to women and bring the university closer to its gender equality goals," athletic director Cindy Jones said.

The new team will be competing in the Great Lakes Valley Conference like the other 14 sports on campus. The GLVC will hold an inaugural women's golf championship next fall in which the Cougars will compete along with six other teams from the conference.

Since SIUE does not have the facilities to hold a golf team, the team will be practicing and competing at the Spencer T. Olin Community Golf Course in Alton.

"We are happy the Spencer T. Olin has come on board with SIUE Athletics. We look forward to beginning our relationship with one of the area's finest golf facilities," Jones said.

The team will carry a full load of seven or eight players. Jones said that there will be scholarships, but no full rides.

"The scholarships will be modest," Jones said. "Probably in the form of tuition waivers."

In addition to searching for a team from high schools and junior colleges, Jones is also looking for a part-time head coach and is interested in any on-campus talent.

"If there are any golfers on campus who would like to give it a try, don't hesitate to contact me," Jones said.

Right now, women's golf is the only golf on campus. Men's golf has been absent from SIUE for four years.

"Men's golf is not imminent right now," Jones said. "We had it then we dropped it. Until we get all the gender equity figured out, men's golf is not our top priority."

Jones is starting her search immediately. She said that she understands she is a little behind, but hopes that area schools will be able to help the Cougars fill their roster.

Cougars to battle for third place tie in GLVC conference; face Quincy and Southern Indiana this weekend

■ BY BRETT LICATA
SPORTS REPORTER

Every conference game is important with the Great Lakes Valley Conference tournament quickly approaching, but none more important than this weekend's pair of games.

The SIUE men's basketball team will renew its biggest rivalry when it invades Quincy, but not before tonight's clash with the nation's No. 7 ranked team, Southern Indiana.

Southern Indiana (17-3 overall, 7-3 GLVC) will be hungry for revenge after SIUE stunned them 96-86 at the Vadalabene Center on Jan. 8.

Head coach Jack Margenthaler expects these match-ups to be highly competitive.

"Those will be two tough games. First, because they are road games and second, because we gave Southern Indiana a conference loss earlier this season," he said.

The Cougars, who are only a game behind Southern Indiana, will be battling for a third place tie in the conference standings. SIUE is currently 12-5 overall and 6-4 in GLVC play.

SIUE needs a good rebounding game against Southern Indiana, according to assistant coach Scott Eggleston.

"They are a very athletic team," Eggleston said. "We have to handle their press and rebound well. We need the same intensity that we've been playing with."

The Cougars venture back into the Land of Lincoln on Saturday to battle Quincy (9-9 overall, 3-7 GLVC).

"Quincy has stumbled a bit in the conference, but you can throw away the records when SIUE and Quincy play," Margenthaler said.

With a pair of double-doubles last weekend, senior Nathan Kreke has taken over the team's scoring lead. The Effingham native averages 12.2 points and 6.7 rebounds per game. Kreke pulled down a career-high 16 boards and tied a career-high with 26 points against Indianapolis a week ago.

Havana's Rusty Sarnes posted a season-high 20 points and worked the glass for 11 rebounds in the win over Indianapolis. Sarnes is averaging 11.9 points and 5.0 rebounds per contest.

The Cougars have been without Allen Berry after he was in an automobile accident on Tuesday of last week. Margenthaler said he will be out of action until he receives a release to practice from his doctor. The Lebanon native leads the team with a 13.5 points per game average.

aren't planning on giving over the win to USI so easily.

"We have so many games left, and every one of them is big," Hedberg said. "I am happy where we are, and some games went our way this weekend, but this thing is far from over."

SIUE's junior forward Kim Lowe is averaging 10.9 rebounds and 13.1 points per game. When Lowe has a big game on the boards the Cougars are tough to beat. She's had more than ten rebounds in eight games and SIUE has won 6 of those 8 games.

Freshman guard Misi Clark is averaging 17.4 points a game and has 61 steals on the season. Those steals have resulted in a lot of lay-ups for the Cougar newcomer and she is number four on the team in free throw shooting at 63 percent.

Saturday the Cougars will end the four contest road trip facing the Quincy University Hawks for a 5 p.m. game. The Hawks are winless in GLVC competition this year and feature senior 6'1" center Laura Sorenson in the post.

LaFontaine has a thousand reasons to feel good, joins scoring elite

NEW YORK (AP) — Joining the 1,000-point club was probably more meaningful for Pat LaFontaine than most NHL players.

It wasn't only that the New York Rangers' center had become the 50th player in history to reach the milestone when he had a goal and an assist last week against the Philadelphia Flyers. Just as important to LaFontaine, he was still playing at a high level consistent with his career.

After all, this is a comeback year for LaFontaine, who missed most of last season because of a concussion.

"It is a special feeling to achieve something like that, especially when I did not think I would have that opportunity last year at this time," said LaFontaine, who joined Joey Mullen and Phil Housley as Americans reaching the 1,000-point plateau.

LaFontaine, acquired by the Rangers just before the season from the Buffalo Sabres, is currently the team's leading scorer with 20 goals and 32 assists in 51 games.

His performance has won him a spot on the United States' Olympic roster for the Olympics, and tabbed him as a prime candidate for the Masterton Trophy, the NHL award for comeback player of the year. With only 13 minor penalties so far, LaFontaine also could be considered for the Lady Byng Trophy for gentlemanly conduct on the ice.

"He's played hard for us, he loves playing in the city here, the fans are great to him and it's a well deserved honor for the adversity he's battled through," teammate Wayne Gretzky says of LaFontaine reaching the 1,000-point milestone.

Some people called him foolish to try a comeback after a serious head injury, despite the $4.8 million salary. It was not the first concussion of LaFontaine's career.

But LaFontaine, a gritty 5-foot-10, 180-pounder, stood up under the punishment. The 32-year-old LaFontaine has been wearing a helmet with extra padding and a mouthguard which, he says, helps to protect against concussions.

Rangers coach Colin Campbell said the Philadelphia game is further proof of LaFontaine's success.

"He competed well against a big team and that's been the big question in his comeback," Campbell said.

LaFontaine played eight seasons with the New York Islanders after a stint with the U.S. team at the 1984 Olympics. He spent six years in Buffalo before his trade to the Rangers.

After 849 games, he has scored 1,003 points (465 goals, 538 assists).

"He's played aggressive, he's answered back and his physical play mirrors his point production," Campbell said.

Former Kamikaze to ring sacred bell at Olympics

NAGANO, Japan (AP) — When Motoichi Godo was 17, he didn't think he would live out the year. A new recruit in the summer of 1945, he was assigned to a unit of human torpedoes, the Japanese Imperial Navy's version of the notorious kamikaze.

But Japan's surrender saved his life. And Godo, now 69, is to play a special role in what he sees as a major celebration of world peace — the Nagano Winter Olympics.

Godo is to participate in a sacred bell-ringing ceremony this weekend at the Zenko-ji temple, one of the oldest Buddhist centers in this country and a sort of patron temple for this city of 360,000 where the games begin Feb. 7.

"It's a very special privilege," he said from the small room in the temple's main hall where he works as a lay assistant to its dozens of priests and monks.

Godo is to ring the temple's 7-foot-tall bronze bell throughout the day Saturday in a ritual of prayer. In accordance with Buddhist beliefs, he will wish for the success of the games, and the happiness and health of all people.

"Because of my past, I have a special feeling about peace," he said. "The war that I fought in should never happen again."

Godo, with a head of thick gray hair and the weathered face of a farmer, still carries with him a photo of the unit he was assigned to and the official orders that sent him to an almost certain death.

His unit was responsible for guarding a strip of coastline with torpedoes that required a human pilot. It was a one-way trip.

"I remember my commander telling me when I reported for duty that my life was in his hands," Godo said. "We all knew that it was our job to blow up both ourselves and our subs."

Before he got his orders to pilot one of the torpedoes, the war ended on Aug. 15, 1945.

"We all heard the emperor announce the end of the war on the radio, but the broadcast was so full of static that we didn't understand it," he said. "We were ready to go fight the Russians."

After the war, Godo returned to his life of growing rice and raising silkworms. Twenty-seven years ago, he began working for the temple.

"I don't like to talk about the past," he said. "I don't want people whose loved ones died in the war to be angry that I am going to ring the bell. I don't want to open any old wounds."

He said the arrival of thousands of athletes, officials and journalists from around the world for the Feb. 7-22 games symbolizes how much things have changed since the war.

"We are seeing so many foreigners here at the temple these days," he said. "None of this would be possible without peace."
